IN CAUCUS.

Teachers Committee Met in the Security Building.

Sweeping Changes Among the Teachers Were Decided On.

Programme Was to Rush Them Through at Tuesday Night's Meeting.

PRINCIPAL GOODLETT TO GET HENNING W. PRENTISS' PLACE AT THE HODGEN.

Assistant Superintendents to Be Switched Around—Mrs. Childs of the Bryan Hill May Be Removed—Colored Teachers to Get a Shaking Up—Members of the Caucus Interviewed.

There is consternation and alarm among the principals and teachers in the St. Louis public schools. It is known that some startling changes are to be decided upon at the meeting of the Teachers Committee to-morrow afternoon, and that a determined attempt is to be made to railroad these changes through the School Board meeting later in the day, but what these changes are is not generally definitely known, hence the uneasy feeling.

The commotion was caused by a secre mid-summer caucus held in the office of Chairman Dieckmann in the Security building last Monday afternoon, which was attended by every member of the Teachers Committee and by President Brockman. The meeting was held behind closed and locked doors and the whole proceedings shrouded in secrecy and mystery. Each member was bound to reveal nothing and every effort made to keep the fact that a meeting had taken place from becoming public. The committee wanted to explode their bomb in an unclouded sky and on an unsuspecting public.

It was hardly likely, however, that such a gathering could remain entirely unknown. The members as they entered Mr. Dieckmann's office were seen and recognized by other occupants of the building and much speculation indulged in as to what such an unprecedented meeting could mean. That important business was on foot there was no doubt and, naturally, those interested consulted such friends as they had who were likely to know the import of the meeting. Thus the secret leaked out, and little by little the programme decided upon at the meeting gained a certain amount of publicity.

President F. W. Brockman.

The holding of such a caucus at this season of the year is without precedent. Heretofore it has invariably been the custom to hold such meetings at the beginning or close of the term. When changes were in contemplation it has been usual to call in the Superintendent and his assistants for consultation. The fact that this was not done this year and that the meeting was held while Supt. Long is out of town is regarded as significant.

Much comment has also been excited by the course taken by President Brockman, who attends all committee meetings, joins in the debates and casts his vote. In the past all presidents of the School Board have used their position as an ex-officio member of all committees to familiarize themselves with the business in hand and have abstained from voting until the matter came before the board. President Brockman presided at last Monday's star-chamber meeting.

THE PROGRAMME OF THE CAUCUS.

The platform adopted by the caucus, and which the members are said to have pledged themselves to support, has some startling changes in view. Had it remained he secret which the members hoped would, thus enabling them to spring it as complete surprise, it would in all probabil[illegible]y have been successfully rushed through [illegible]e board meeting. Now that the facts are [illegible]ade public, however, considerable opposi[illegible]on may develop and its success is doubtful. One of the most important changes de[illegible]ded upon was the transfer of Principal [illegible]odlett from the Lincoln School to the Hodgen School, to take the place of Principal Henning W. Pentiss, who was to be given the Lincoln School. This would be a promotion for Principal Goodlett, presumably in acknowledgment of his efficient services in the past and an indorsement of his course in the management of the school. One of the most noteworthy of Mr. Goodlett's recent official acts, it will be remembered, was to cause the arrest of three of his little boy scholars for breaking a school window, and causing them to be removed to the Four Courts in the hoodlum wagon. His action was indorsed by the board at the time, and his advancement so soon afterward may be taken as a further indorsement of his conduct.

Another change decided upon, it is said, is the removal of Mrs. Childs from the Bryan Hill School, and the filling of her position by a man principal. This action is said to be the initial step toward the removal of all lady principals.

It was also decided to move the three assistant superintendents around. Heretofore each assistant superintendent has had his own district and as a consequence was well acquainted with the teachers and with the work done in the schools under his supervision.

Several changes were also contemplated among the teachers in the colored schools. Exactly what these changes were it was impossible to ascertain.

CHAIRMAN DIECKMAN'S STATEMENT.

Chairman Dieckman was seen at his office this morning and asked to explain the import of the meeting. He admitted that the meeting had taken place in the office last Monday and refused to say what business was transacted.

"It was not a meeting of the Teachers Committee," he said, "but rather a meeting of individuals. They discussed the principals of the various schools, and decided to define the duties of these principals more definitely than has been done in the past."

"What business is to be taken up before the meeting of the Teachers Committee to-morrow?" he was asked.

"The usual routine business, I suppose," was the reply.

"Will not the removals decided upon at the caucus be brought up?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

"What are these removals?"

"I am not at liberty to state that. It is doubtful just what will be done anyhow, for the members often change their minds from one day to another. I should not like to bet that any changes will be made."

BROCKMAN SEEN.

The interview with President F. W. Brockman was interesting.

"Mr. Brockman, what is the Teachers Committee going to do to-morrow evening?"

"I cannot say."

"There is a report that Principal Goodlett of the Lincoln School and Principal Prentiss of the Hodgen School are to exchange places.

"Well, Mr. Prentiss seems to have a notion that he is to be removed to the Lincoln School. As a general rule, I think that principals should be transferred every few years."

"Why are you going to promote Mr. Goodlett at the expense of Mr. Prentiss?"

"It will not be a promotion, for the Lincoln and Hodgen are schools of like grade."

"Do you think that assistant superintendents should be given new districts each year?"

"Yes, I do."

"There is a report that Mrs. Halcyon Childs, Principal of the Bryan Hill School, is to be removed to make way for a man principal."

"There is a sentiment among the patrons of the Bryan Hill that a man should be at the head of that school."

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Brockman, did not the Teachers Committee hold a secret session in Mr. Dieckman's office last Monday and decide to exchange Principals Goodlett and Prentiss, to transfer the assistant superintendents, to remove Mrs. Childs, and incidentally to begin a crusade against all lady principals?"

Mr. Brockman replied with a guilty smile and said: "I have given my word of honor not to say a thing about that meeting and I must ask to be excused from answering your question and even not to be quoted as having been asked that question. There is no harm about such meetings. When the Teachers; Committee has a regular executive session, the members of the board, not members of the committee, and all the board's officers are free to be present. Hence there may be twenty-five or thirty persons at a so-called executive session and comitteemen will be afraid to speak out their minds, because they may be reported to the person concerned."

"You were present at last Monday's meeting and acted in your ex-officio capacity, did you not?"

"Now please do not quote me on that point. I was given an invitation to attend th meeting. I am a member of each committee and am in a manner responsible for the doings of all of them. I know where you got your information about that meeting, and I assure you the informer will never be invited to another. He is an old woman who knew what trouble he would make for the members of the committee. Now if you publish these things this evening the Teachers Committee will be buttonholed to death before to-morrow afternoon. When gentlemen give their word of honor to each other that they will not divulge what goes on between them, I have a supreme contempt for the one who violates his pledge."

GRAWE INTERVIEWED.

A reporter said to Director Grawe, a member of the Teachers Committee, who was present at Monday's caucus:

"I understand that Mr. Goodlett is to be transferred to the Hodgen School."

"Yes, I have heard so. I do not favor that move, on account of the position which I took against Mr. Goodlett, when he had three of his pupils driven through the streets in a hoodlum wagon. While he will not be given a promotion, yet from a principal's point of view the Hodgen School is far more desirable than the Lincoln. The Hodgen is located in a growing, well-to-do neighborhood, while the Lincoln School is patronized by poor people, altogether. I will not favor the change."

"It is true that the committee has decided to remove Mrs. Childs from the Bryan Hill School and give the place to a man?"

"Now, let me say that I will fight that matter to the end. Some of the old German citizens of North St. Louis have not got over the ancient idea of a schoolmaster. I believe that the School Board should ignore them and knock that antiquated notion out of them. Mrs. Childs went to the Bryan Hill School when it had but four rooms. Now it has eighteen rooms and she preserves perfect discipline. If she is removed, I shall insist that she shall be promoted. Our lady principals are models, and I will oppose any movement to get rid of them."

"Mr. Grawe, why did the Teachers Committee hold a private caucus last Monday and decide to exchange Messrs. Goodlett and Prentiss and do other things which are to be railroaded through at to-morrow afternoon's meeting?"

With much haste Mr. Grawe answered: "I will neither affirm or deny your question, for I am pledged to secrecy."

SHEAHAN'S ADMISSIONS.

Mr. John Sheahan admitted that some "suggestions" had been offered at an informal meeting of the members of the Teachers Committee. He was sure that Mrs. Childs would not be removed from the Bryan Hill School. He understood that the patrons of the school had drawn up a petition asking for a trousered principal. This petition had been put in the hands of Director Kissner, who did not favor the removal of Mrs. Childs. Mr. Sheahan did not care if Mr. Prentiss and Mr. Goodlett "swapped" schools, as that was a matter which belonged to the South End. Mr. Sheahan confessed that several colored principals would be transferred for "harmony's sake." Mr. Parker of the Dumas School may be one of them. Mr. Sheahan insisted that the caucus merely threw out "suggestions."

DIRECTOR SPINNING.

Mr. Spinning, also a member of the Teachers Committee, was seen at his office, 217 North Main street. He admitted being present at the meeting last Monday, but refused to divulge anything of the proceedings.

"If any of the other members want to give up the secret," he said, "let them do so. I can not tell you anything about it."

"Were you pledged to secrecy, then?"

"Oh, well, said Mr. Spinning," as though about to enter a denial, and then changing his mind, said, "Yes, the meeting was secret, as is usual in all such caucuses."

"Is it true that Principals Goodlett and Prentiss are to change schools?"

"That is an old matter; it has come up several times in the past three years."

"Is Mrs. Childs to be removed from Bryan Hill School?"

"Well, you may say that I am a good friend of Mrs. Childs, and draw your inference from that.

"Now, don't ask me any more questions," continued Mr. Spinning, "for if you do I shall have to refuse to answer them. Good morning."

ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENTS TO MEET.

A reporter called at the office of Supt. Long this morning and asked to see the Assistant Superintendents. Mr. Romeyn O. Dyer, the clerk in charge, said: "Neither Mr. Murphy, Mr. Foster nor Mr. Teuteberg will be here until 3 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour they will meet and prepare work for to-morrow's session of the Teachers Committee, that is, they will put in order the papers for promotions, leaves of absence and transfers."

The notion of the Assistant Superintendents meeting to arrange things for the Teachers Committee was quite amusing in the light of recent developments.

FOUR LIVES LOST.

Drowned While Crossing Sydenham River in Michigan.

MARINE CITY, Mich., Aug. 13.—Word reaches here of a drowning accident in Sydenham River near Thornyhurst on yesterday, in which four young people lost their lives. Dead:

No one saw the accident and it is not known just how it occurred. The party started to cross the river in an old flat bottomed boat and it is supposed that it capsized. All the bodies have been recovered.

ALTERNATIVE WRIT.

Judge Fisher Grants One Against Health Commissioner Homan.

It appears from developments before Judge Fisher to-day that Health Commissioner Homan has not yet concluded to allow Louis Bohle to stable the Health Department horses. Mr. W. B. Thompson, as attorney for Mr. Bohle, appeared before Judge Fisher and explained the situation, after which the Judge issued an alternative writ of mandamus citing the Health Commissioner to appear Monday and show cause why he should not place the Department horses in Mr. Bohle's stable as previously decided by a majority of the Board of Health.

Fair To-Day, With Showers To-Night or To-Morrow.

[INDICATIONS OF FLAGS: Triangular—Temperature; at the top, warmer; at bottom, cooler. Blue—Precipitation. White—Fair weather. Thus: Blue, white and triangular—Snow, rain or sleet, followed by fair and cooler weather.]

☐ For Missouri—Fair Monday. Showers Monday night or Tuesday. Cooler Tuesday.

BLUE For St. Louis and vicinity—Fair Monday. Showers Monday night or Tuesday. Cooler Tuesday evening.

▶ For Illinois—Thunder showers to-night in north part. Fair south, probably showers Tuesday; slightly warmer to-night; fresh southeast winds.

Since Saturday there have been showers from Eastern Iowa and Northern Missouri eastward. There was also some rain in the Southwest. The high temperatures have continued generally although they were somewhat lower on Sunday than on Saturday. A well defined area of low pressure is central this morning in Western Nebraska, and will probably cause rain in this vicinity within thirty-six hours.

BACKED DOWN

The House Surrenders to the Senate on the Tariff.

The Gorman-Brice Bill Accepted by the Democratic Caucus.

Separate Measures for Free Sugar, Coal, Iron Ore and Barbed Wire.

WILL BE PREPARED AT ONCE AND PASSED BY THE HOUSE.

"It Was the Senate Bill or No Tariff Legislation," Speaker Crisp Told the Caucus—The Resolution to Capitulate Passed by 130 to 21—Chairman Wilson's Explanation of the Situation—Proceedings of the Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—An hour before 10 o'clock, the time set for the caucus, members began to arrive at the Capitol to-day and hasty consultations were held on the course to be pursued. Speaker Crisp was joined in his private office by Chairman Wilson and Representatives Turner, McMillin and Montgomery, the full membership of the House Democratic Tariff Conference Committee.

Representative Breckinridge of Arkansas, an advisory member of the conference, was also present. It was a final consultation on the line of action to be presented by the House leaders to the caucus. The meeting lasted until it was time for the caucus to convene.

In the meantime there was a scene of animation on the floor of the House. Representatives Tracey, Straus, Warner and others passed among their associates and stiffened up the sentiment of loyalty to the conferrees. It was apparently up-hill work, however, as the current of feeling among the rank and file of members seemed to be setting strongly in favor of accepting the Senate bill without further delay.

At 10 o'clock Speaker Crisp and all the conferrees filed out of the Speaker's office and took seats in a body in the forward part of the Democratic side.

There was an ominous silence as they came in. At that time 153 Democratic members were on the floor. As Mr. Wilson passed through the corridor to the House he was asked as to the result of the conference in the Speaker's room, but answered:

"I cannot make it known now."

Chairman Holman called the caucus to order promptly and the call for the meeting was read. The roll call which followed took some time, and members shifted uneasily for the decisive action ahead.

WILSON EXPLAINS THE SITUATION.

Chairman Wilson took the floor immediately after the roll call and made a general statement of the situation. He spoke calmly and dispassionately and received the closest attention. Members left their seats and crowded eagerly about him, listening intently to every word. It is seldom that such eager interest has been shown at a caucus. Mr. Wilson began with a recital of the difficulties that have been encountered. He went over each stage of the situation with much detail. He said that each step had been pursued with an earnest desire to support with honor the desires of the House to resist what was regarded as the unreasonable demands of the Senate.

Mr. Wilson did not confine himself to generalization. He took up the contested schedules, particularly sugar, coal and iron ore, and reviewed the differences in conference on these items. He took up each proposition on sugar and spoke of the vast profits to the sugar trust which would result from many of these propositions. He did not indulge in the sharp criticism that was expected on the motives of the Senate conferrees.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the fight made by the House conferrees for a specific duty on sugar on the ground that under an ad valorem system it would be impossible to tell, on account of the invoice methods, the exact advantage which would accrue to the Sugar Trust. He made the remarkable statement that he had been credibly informed and believed that the Sugar Trust had anticipated the enactment of the Senate sugar schedule by the purchase of $112,000,000 worth of raw sugar. If this was true, he said, the profits accruing to the trust from this investment would be at least $40,000,000. Mr. Wilson also pointed out at length the embarrassment attending the efforts to adjust the coal and iron schedules.

THE PEOPLE AND THE TRUST.

"The great battle," said Mr. Wilson, warming up, "is between the American people and the Sugar Trust. It is a battle in which the trust has taken the people by the throat, and it will never end until we throw off the grip."

There was enthusiastic applause at this. He proceeded to state that the House conferrees had been willing to concede almost everything except the vital items of sugar, iron and coal; that the Senate conferrees had also seemed willing to concede much and held much the same views, but were apparently dominated by the knowledge that if they conceded what they were willing to concede, the bill could not pass and the agreement would be useless.

Mr. Wilson closed at 11:05 o'clock, having talked just an hour. It was understood, however, that Mr. Wilson had not yielded the floor permanently, but would resume later, after his conference associates, Messrs. Montgomery, McMillin and Turner, has corroborated his statements as to dates.

Mr. Montgomery then took the floor and substantiated what Mr. Wilson had said as to the details of the conference.

SENATE BILL OR NOTHING.

Speaker Crisp followed Mr. Montgomery. He spoke with much spirit and earnestness and soon the caucus was in a tumult of enthusiasm, round after round of applause greeting his remarks. He spoke of the critical condition and of the apparent need to accept the Senate bill, and then if need be, to introduce separate bills for free sugar, free iron and free coal.

Mr. Crisp followed in the line of Mr. Wilson, saying that it was either the "Senate bill or nothing." He said that as long as there was a desperate chance of securing concessions the House demanded he was in favor of standing out, but he was now satisfied that the time had come when further insistence by the House was useless. He closed his remarks by offering a resolution instructing the House conferrees to recede.

A great burst of applause greeted the reading of the resolution, but half a dozen irate Democrats were on their feet demanding recognition, prominent among them being Bourke Cockran of New York. Owing to the lateness of the hour a rule was adopted limiting further speeches to five minutes.

BOURKE COCKRAN PROTESTS.

Then Mr. Cockren delivered a vigorous and eloquent speech against surrendering to the Senate. "Better no tariff legislation than the Senate bill," he said. Mr. Cockran declared that there was no necessity for the House to surrender as yet, and challenged Chairman Wilson's statement that four Democratic votes in the Senate would be lost to the bill if the fight proceeded. He demanded the names of the four Senators, but Wilson refused to give them.

The previous question was demanded on the Crisp resolution, and ordered by a vote of 112 to 21. Among those who voted against the previous question were the Louisiana members, Cockran of New York and others. Thirteen minutes was then given to the opposition to state their position.

Mr. McMillin followed in vigorous style. He repudiated the statement made by Mr. Cockran that the Senate bill was worse than the McKinley bill.

Mr. Robertson of Louisiana objected to the resolution on account of the free sugar provisions and generally protested against the treatment of Louisiana. As the hour of 12 o'clock approached, when the House was to meet, the cry of "vote" went up from the impatient members. Mr. Robertson of Louisiana continued to urge that it would be bad faith to cut off the Louisiana planters from the bounty on this year's crop, on which they had reckoned when they put it in.

During the fifteen minutes' debate, Chairman Wilson rose and pleaded with the caucus not to take action to-day. He said that whatever was the mind of the House, there was no necessity for immediate and hurried action.

CRISP'S RESOLUTION ADOPTED.

Speaker Crisp's resolution was then adopted, 130 to 21. A division of the resolution was demanded so as to have a separate vote on the first part to recede from disagreement to Senate amendments, and the provision for separate bills. The first part of the resolution was adopted by a rising vote, 130 to 21.

The resolution is as follows:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this caucus that the order heretofore made requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on House bill 484 be rescinded. That the conferees heretofore appointed by the House be discharged from further duty in that behalf and that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendments to said bill and agree to the same.

Resolved further that the House shall at once proceed to the consideration of separate bills placing the following tariff articles on the free list, viz.: Sugar in all its forms, iron ore, coal and barbed wire. The Committee on Rules is requested to report an order providing for the prompt consideration of such motion and bills.

Representative Tucker of Virginia then offered a resolution thanking and commending the House conferees for their loyal service. This was adopted with a shout of approval and the caucus adjourned.

THOSE WHO VOTED "NO."

Among those who voted against the resolution were the Louisiana members, Warner of New York, Strauss and Tracey of New York, Tarnsey of Missouri, Cockran of New York, Covert of New York, Dunphy of New York, Cooper of Indiana, Johnson of Ohio, Kilgore of Texas, the Maryland delegation, Raynor, McKaig, Rusk and Talbot; Breckinridge of Arkansas, a member of the Ways and Means Committee; Williams of Mississippi also voted against the resolution. Most of those who voted against the first part of the resolution voted for the second part.

WILL FINISH THE WORK QUICKLY.

It is the intention of the Democratic managers of the House to finish up everything today. The Committee on Rules will present a special order to carry out the mandate of the caucus. The intention is to pass the tariff bill and then will follow the other bills named in the caucus resolution. These bill have all been prepared and, though not reported from the Ways and Means Committee or in regular order, these preliminaries can be dispensed with under a special order from the Committee on Rules. Speaker Crisp and Representative Catchings went into session shortly after the House met and messengers were sent in every direction for Representative Outhwaite, the other Democratic member of the Rules Committee, as his vote is necessary to carry out the programme.

Representative Outhwaite, the absent Democratic member of the Rules Committee, is at Cresson Springs, and has been telegraphed for by his colleagues. It is said that he cannot reach Washington until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The Republican members of the Rules Committee were called in at 12:30.

Made an Assignment.

M. A. Whelan, dealer in wall paper, picture mouldings, etc., at No. 3218 Easton avenue, made an assignment to-day to Wentworth Terry for the benefit of creditors. The assignor gives his assets at $8,000. The liabilities are not stated.

THE BEAUTIFUL RIVER DES PERES.

[A poem given space in the hope that it will never meet the eye of the author of "The Bells of Shandon."]

With deep dejection
And disaffection
I often think of
Those sewage smells
Which rise sublimely,
And most untimely,
From Forest Park's
Secluded dells.

The cabbage old
Its fort may hold
And breathe manifold
Its fragrant air;
But no afflatus
Is so non gratus
As that from thee,
Oh River Des Peres.

The odorous cheeses
And freighted breezes
I've smelled full oft
In many a clime;
But the matchless flavor
Of thy sewage savor
Can discount them all
At any time.

So where e'er I wander
I grew sick and ponder
How much less fonder
Of thee I'll dream,
Thou rank, pestiferous
And deep odoriferous
Germ-laden
Sewage stream.

WILSON ON THE SURRENDER.

"The Senate Is Not a Democratic Body on the Tariff."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Chairman Wilson, author of the House tariff bill, prepared for the Press, at the close of the caucus to-day, a statement of his views on the tariff situation. The statement is in Mr. Wilson's handwriting, and gives distinctly his position on the action of the House in accepting the tariff bill. It is as follows:

"I cannot see where we failed to do anything we could do, to bring about a better result. When I have done the best, according to my capacity and judgement, I must fall back on the consciousness of duty done. The difficulty which the country must recognize is that on the tariff question we did not have a Democratic Senate and whatever has been gained has been wrested from a protective body. I have been willing to take any, even the most desperate chances, that gave the least hope of success in getting rid of the most objectionable Senate amendments, and would have fought to the 4th of March if I had any ground to stand upon and any following to sustain me.

We have been confronted by a Senate with closed ranks, while we have had divisions from the beginning that have been fomented from the Senate and the growing impatience of the members to get back to their districts with anything that might be called a tariff reduction bill, has made them unwilling to stay unless promise could be given of assured or probable victory. We could not honestly give such promise, and a man cannot continue a battle with his army ready and eager to break away."

BETTER THAN M'KINLEYISM.

Representative McMillan, one of the Democratic House conferees, gave a statement more in detail as to the effect of the tariff bill which would be enacted as a result of to-day's action. He said:

"The effect of the caucus' action will be the passage of the House bill with the Senate amendments. While the House bill is a better measure in my judgment than this, the measure which will become a law instead by to-day's action is a wonderful improvement on the McKinley law. It gives free wool, free lumber, free hemp, flax and jute, and reduces largely the duty on goods into which all these materials enter. To illustrate, the average duty on woolen goods under the McKinley law is 98½ per cent. This has been reduced more than half. There is a considerable reduction in all schedules and the average on all will be about 38 per cent as against 50 per cent under the present law and in addition to this they are very great additions to the free list upon which no tax is collected at all. The right of the President to impose taxes without Congress is taken away and given back to the Congress to whom it belongs and from whom it was wrested by the McKinley law. Much has been said concerning the sugar duty. There is less benefit given to the manufacturer by this bill than by the McKinley law. There is a very considerable reduction in this. While, as I stated in the beginning, the Senate amendments leave the bill in less acceptable shape than when it left the House there is no comparison between the merits of the two. It should not be forgotten, also, that the system recommended by the House, known as the income tax, is retained in the bill and becomes a part of our fiscal policy. By this it is proposed to tax what people have, in excess of their needs, rather than to tax what they need and have not got.

IN THE HOUSE.

The Tariff Bill With the Senate Amendments Under Consideration.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—When the House met five minutes after the Democratic caucus adjourned there were more members on the floor than at any time since the tariff bill was passed. The anxious public who thronged the corridors before the doors were thrown open crowded into the galleries in anticipation of the final scene in the long tariff battle.

The greatest confusion existed on the floor. Members were standing about in excited groups discussing the situation, the general understanding being that resolutions to agree to the Senate amendments and probably to consider the bill for free coal, iron, sugar and barbed wire would be brought in this afternoon.

At 2:25 p. m. Mr. Catchings was recognized and presented the report of the Rules Committee providing for the passage of the tariff bill, to be followed by separate bills f[illegible] sugar, coal, iron ore and barbed wire.

PUSH THE WAR

The Japanese Policy as Shown by Events in the Yellow Sea.

Bold Attacks on Naval Stations of the Chinese Coast.

A MOVEMENT PLANNED TO STRIKE AT PEKING.

Chinese Ships Said to Be Sailing for Japan—No Additional News of the Battles at Port Arthur and Wai-Hai-Wei—The Chinese Claim That the Japs Were Repulsed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The Japanese legation is without full particulars of the naval battle in the Yellow Sea, off the harbor of Wai-Hai-Wei, or that of the previous day near Port Arthur. The officials of the Legation are in receipt of dispatches which show that while the attack on the forts at Port Arthur was repulsed, the engagement between the fleets off Wai-Hai-Wei resulted satisfactorily to the Japanese Admiral in command of their squadron.

At the Chinese Legation it was said that the Minister was not in receipt of any dispatches from his government concerning the reported engagements.

Officials of the Japanese Legation talk freely of the war. They point out that the operations of their fleets in the Yellow Sea indicate that Japan means to push the war and that a movement will be made on Peking soon.

These statements are borne out by the fact that Japanese warships seem to have full possession of the open waters of the Yellow Sea. Ever since the Corean troubles began they have been cruising within sight of the naval stations on the Chinese Coast, even advancing into the Gulf of Pe-Chi-Li and attacking a Chinese squadron at Taku, the gateway to the Chinese capital. The Chinese warships seem to "keep near shore," as the attacks on the harbor of Wai Hai Wei and Port Arthur show. In each instance the Chinese fleet had to be drawn into the fight by the Japanese.

Taku, where the first attack was made, is only 100 miles from Peking, at the mouth of the Pei Ho. Port Arthur, the scene of the second assault, lies at the point of a neck of land called the Regent's Sword," jutting out from the North China coast. It is nearly opposite Wai Hai Wei, on the south side of the Yellow Sea. The latter lies on the San Tung Promontory, and the two fortified places seem to guard the entrance from the open Yellow Sea to Pe Chi Li Gulf, although they are separated by a stretch of water fifty miles wide.

The distance from either point to Taku is but a few hours' sail for Japan's cruisers. The important naval station of Chee Foo is less than fifty miles from Wai Hai Wei, and it is from this point that the news of the recent naval operations is telegraphed to Shanghai. The most powerful cruisers of the Chinese navy are in those waters, the Pie Yang squadron, commanded by Admiral Ting. They are equipped with Krupp and Armstrong guns and torpedo tubes and officered in some cases by foreigners.

CARRYING THE WAR TO JAPAN.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Up to the present there has been no confirmation of the reported engagement between the Pie Yang squadron and a Japanese fleet. The Chinese fleet seems to have disappeared from the coast and its whereabouts is a mystery. Report has it that the Chinese war vessels may shortly be heard from off the Japanese coast.

ARMS FOR THE ORIENT.

American Guns Shipped to China From New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 13.—All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, the arms companies of this city expect to reap a rich harvest from the shipment of weapons [illegible]r the oriental war. Two weeks ago a test case was made by the Winchester company. Two members of the Chinese Legation visited the factory of the company, bought a large order, which was shipped for China via Vancouver at once, and the action by the Government was awaited with anxiety. None has been taken, and it is believed that free shipment of arms to the belligerents from the United States will not be interfered with. This is exactly according to precedent. The case of the Græceo-Russian war was the most notorious example of shipments of American guns to participants in a foreign war, and the recollection of the Grecian ships sailing up the local harbor and loading with New Haven arms is still vivid in the minds of people in this city. The Winchester and Marlin arms companies have furnished the munitions of war to many of the South American countries in the recent revolutions there, as well as to a number of other countries engaged in hostility. They are eager to ship the large amounts of goods to China or Japan and will probably be permitted to do so. An interesting incident relative to the order of guns just made to China is told by a Winchester employe. He said on the occasion of the visit of the Chinese agents to the factory here they were shown the various patterns of arms and seemed to be entirely unskilled in a knowledge of what was the most approved and desirable style of shooting irons. Finally they selected for their entire order 8,000 Hotchkiss guns of a pattern of ten years ago, a lot that the company had for some time been solicitous about disposing of to advantage. Judging from this incident the Chinese idea of modern firearms is not exactly fin de siecle. The local manufacturers think the edict of Von Caprivi of Germany that no guns shall go from that country to the Orient will aid American shipments materially.

ARRIVED STARVING.

A Detachment of Kelly's Amy on Its Way Home.

THE MEN WERE GIVEN TRANSPORTATION AS FAR AS ST. LOUIS.

Were Also Given Food to Last Them Until They Reached Here, but a Delay of a Day on the Road Put Them in a Bad Way for Provisions.

The Big Four train from Cincinnati, which reached the Union Depot at 8:45 a. m. to-day, had among its passengers sixty-eight members of Kelly's army on their way from Washington back to their home in California. They were furnished transportation as far as St. Louis and with provisions to last them this far. Now their provisions are gone, and they are without means of continuing their journey. As they were delayed about a day on the road their provisions, which they divided on leaving Washington, gave out.

Some of the men who were not hearty eaters had enough to last until they reached here, while others finished their food a day ago. Most of them had nothing to eat last night or this morning and some others had nothing to eat for twenty-four hours. At least this is the statement of one of their leaders, Samuel Boyd. He is a laborer from Jacquin County, Cal. He and two others, James Smith, an iron-worker from San Francisco, Cal., and Geo. Lee, a carpenter from Sacramento, Cal., are a committee selected by the men to act for them.

THEIR EXPERIENCES.

Boyd, who acted as spokesman, said that they left Washington Friday at 11:10 o'clock and came over the Chesapeake & Ohio road as far as Cincinnati, where they were transferred to the Big Four road. They arrived at Cincinnatti at noon yesterday and left there last night. About ninety more were to follow in a day, being the last of Kelly's army. The remainder of Kelly's industrials who reached Washington had left on their own account before. The men did not know who furnished them the means of transportation. All they knew was that a wholesale grocer of Washington named Frank Humes conducted the negotiations. Humes, Boyd stated, was very kind to them during their stay in Washington, and both contributed out of his own pocket toward their support and induced others to aid them. They were given on leaving Washington, Boyd stated, 200 loaves of bread, 60 pounds of ham, 25 pounds of Bologna sausage, 60 pounds of jelly and 15 pounds of coffee.

MUST SHIFT FOR THEMSELVES.

The men, on reaching St. Louis, were corralled at the depot, at a point between the tracks at the southwestern portion of the platform. They were not placed under arrest, but were told by Sergt. Dawson, who is in charge of the depot squad of police, to remain in one place. He placed Officer Corcoran on guard to see that his instructions were carried out, while he reported the matter to Capt. Sam Boyd, a namesake, by the way, of the Kelly leader. Capt. Boyd referred the matter to Chief of Police Harrigan, who in turn communicated with the Mayor. The latter refused to take any action and sent word to Chief Harrigan to let the men go their way as best they could and to look out for any improper characters who might be among them. This leaves the band in a bad strait.

Boyd complained bitterly of the treatment which they received from the trades unions while at Washington. Before they reached there, the unions, he said, promised them assistance, but did nothing for them when they got to the capital.

TO BE SENT TO KANSAS CITY.

This afternoon it was announced that arrangements had been made to send the Kellyites to Kansas City on a Wabash special train to leave here at 8:35 o'clock this evening.

The Wabash officials state that the men are ticketed through from Washington to Kansas City and that no one at St. Louis paid their fare.

ON INDICTMENTS.

Capiases Issued For George D. Barnard & Co., and R. & T. A. Ennis.

United States Marshal John E. Lynch to-day received from the United States District Court for the Northern District of Mississippi, certified copies of the indictments returned at the April term of that court, charging George D. Barnard and R. & T. A. Ennis, stationers of this city, with conspiracy in restraint of trade. The indictments were accompanied by capiases, which Marshal Lynch put in the hands of a deputy to serve upon the accused and to bring them before United States Commissioner Crawford to give bond for their appearance at the next term of the Mississippi court.

A dispatch received here Sunday evening, July 29, stated that George D. Barnard, W. K. Richards, C. Floyd Shock, three of the four directors of the Geo. D. Barnard Stationery Co. of this city had been arrested at Meridian, Miss., that day, by a United States Marshal, on indictments found by the Federal Grand Jury at the April term of the United States Court at Aberdeen, Miss., charging each of the defendants with conspiracy to defraud by entering into a blank book combine. When Mr. Edward F. Uslick, Secretary of the firm, was seen at the time in regard to the matter he explained that Messrs. Barnard, Shock and Richards knew of the indictments before they went to Mississippi and expected to be arrested on their arrival there. Mr. Usteck said that one E. L. Sykes of Aberdeen was responsible for all the trouble. He said that his firm did charged Sykes last fall for dishonesty and that further they had him indicted a Menden, but when his case came up he got a continuance. Meanwhile he got out, got on the Grand Jury and while there had the directors of Geo. D. Barnard & Co. indicted for an alleged conspiracy with it. and T. A. Ennis of this city and Marshall and Bruce of Nashville, Ill., to violate the anti-trust laws.

DEVASTATION.

Forests, Buildings and Crops Laid Waste by an Ohio Cyclone.

GENEVA, O., Aug. 13.—A cyclone struck North Madison early this morning, devastating forests, orchards, buildings, growing crops, etc. The wind struck in near the lake and swept a path 100 feet wide clear of everything in its way.

Heavy hail stones accompanied the wind and smashed thousands of windows. All crops in the path of the storm were utterly destroyed. The roar of the wind was heard two and three miles away and is described as being something awful. The storm swept a path about three miles long. The loss will be heavy. So far as learned no one was seriously injured.

REAL ESTATE.

The Frisco's New Vandeventer Avenue Station—Sales and Transfers.

Business in real estate circles to-day was quiet. Several large sales of business property are being negotiated, however, which will probably be consummated in a few days.

For some time past the Frisco Railroad has been grading in the vicinity of Vandeventer avenue and it is now reported that they mean to erect a new suburban passenger station at that point. The Missouri Pacific Railroad and the Lindell have a depot in common at Vandeventer avenue, and of such importance has it become that all trains are now stopped there. The 'Frisco has a heavy suburban business, and want to afford their suburban patrons first-class accomodations.

The Nicholls-Ritter Realty and Financial Co. report the sale of the new flats Nos. 4409 and 4411 Belle place, with lot 30x150 feet, for $10,500 from James J. Kelly to S. Labsap for investment. The flats rent for $1,080 per annum.

John Maguire & Co. report the following sales: No. 4233 Olive street, a three-story nine-room brick dwelling with 40x152 feet of ground for $8,250, from Col. Sam Simmons to George A. Bannantine.

Twelfth street, east side, between Brooklyn and Mound streets, 48x127 feet for $3,500, from Tim Keith's estate and Francis Ann Keith to Ellen J. Dunn.

J. T. McCasland, the East St. Louis real estate agent, purchased ten beeves at the Union Stock Yards this morning for the barbecue next Saturday, when the new Scullin line in East St. Louis running out through Alta Sita is to be formally opened.

EXCITING SCENES.

They Attended the Opening Up of the Eleventh Ward Polls.

At the north precinct of the Eleventh Ward the opening of the polls was attended with exciting scenes. The Sigmund crowd wanted to count every hour, and refused to open the box until this was agreed to. While the dispute was in progress, a special messenger arrived from the Recorder's office with instructions not to count every hour. The Besch crowd then closed the shutters and darkened up the poll. The police interfered and the poll was finally opened. About forty of the street cleaners' brigade marched up and got in line. At 2 o'clock they had not been cleared away. Henry Besch and Gottlieb Ayreman almost came to blows.

HOLDS THE LICENSE.

Capt. Brolaski Will Not Give Up the Pargoud's Certificate.

The Federal authorities said to-day that Capt. H. W. Brolaski, formerly commander of the steamboat Pargoud, which was sold to E. Conery, Jr., of New Orleans Saturday, has refused to surrender the vessel's certificate of enrollment and license without which it cannot leave port. The Federal authorities state that Capt. Brolaski has laid himself liable to a fine of $50. The new owner of the vessel can obtain another license from the custodian of the port.

BELIEVED TO BE DEAD.

Christian Vosler an Heir to a Large Estate in Germany.

Carl Nienharot, a notary public and real estate dealer at Grand Rapids, Mich., has written Judge Woerner of the Probate Court for information concerning Christian Vosler who left Grand Rapids a number of years ago and engaged in steamboating on the Mississippi River. The letter states that information has been received that Vosler lost his life on the river, just how is not known. He has recently inherited a large estate in Germany, but inasmuch as his heirs do not know when or how he died they have no proof of his death. Nothing has been heard of him by his relatives for twenty years, at which time he made St. Louis his headquarters.

TENDENCY UPWARD.

Stocks Will Rise Because Adverse Conditions Have Been Discounted.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Henry Clews, in his weekly circular, says:

The movements of the market for the week just ending undoubtedly indicate an improvement in the situation. For some time past it has been fluctuating alternately under the influence of hope and fear; but now its undertone is gradually broadening and strengthening, and there is a marked tendency to discount a generally clarified atmosphere. It looks as though we have seen the worst of everything, and that the pendulum is at last going to swing the other way. Outside of the all-important tariff question, the corn crop has again been the greatest factor in the market for the past few days. The "bears" have been actively engaged in pounding the Grangers, basing their action on the prospect of reduced dividends on these securities, as a result of the prospective corn shortage.

The feeling that some definite decision, one way or the other, will soon be arrived at is gaining ground, however, and this feeling is doing a good deal toward hastening the return of confidence. The stock of manufactured goods in the United States is lower than it has been for a great many years, and there will soon be actual necessity for at least a partial resumption of business on the part of manufacturers. A speedy settlement of the tariff debate will give them a basis on which to start in, and that is all that is needed. The entire stock market has fully discounted all adverse factors, and will now commence to consider and be governed by what is to come, and not what has passed. The present conditions will be lost sight of and give way to those that may be expected to prevail six months hence and thereafter. By that time I do not hesitate to say that the railroad earnings will have returned to their normal condition, and general activity in commercial channels will be restored. The thing to do now, therefore, is to discount a general improvement in the future. I recommend buying stocks now for higher prices. The sharp advance during the past few days in Louisville & Nashville and Western Union properties, which are not directly affected by either the crop or tariff news, furnishes a sample of what we can expect with a removal of existing unfavorable influences.

Families Fight.

Mrs. Nellie Ives swore out a warrant today against Lee Sullivan and his wife, Nora, charging assault and battery. Mrs. Ives is stopping with her husband, W. B. Ives, at Kosman's Hotel, Eighth and Chestnut streets.

Yesterday the two families got into a quarrel, it seems, according to Mrs. Ives' story.

His Team Ran Away.

This morning while Gotlieb Rager, a farmer from Brannon Post Office, St. Louis County, was delivering a load of melons at 4058 Olive his team ran away and colliding with a grip car of one of the cable trains scattered melons all over the street. The damage to wagon and melons amounts to $60.

WILL FILE BRIEFS.

The Bircher Street Bridge Case Before Judge Fisher.

GOES OVER TO GIVE ATTORNEYS TIME TO WRITE ARGUMENTS.

The Court Intimates That the Board of Public Improvements Exceeded Its Powers, But the City's Action in Not Stopping Work While the Bridge Was Building Is a Point to Consider.

The Bircher street bridge injunction matter came up before Judge Fisher to-day, J. A. Overall appearing for the Merchants' Bridge Terminal Railway Co., and City Counselor Marshall for the city. Mr. Overall contended that the bridge was being constructed in pursuance to the plans of the Board of Public Improvements and in uniformity to the ordinance granting the Merchants' Terminal Co. a franchise. He also claimed that should the company's tracks go under Broadway by the use of a tunnel it would cause the flooding of the streets on the west by water, and if an embankment and bridge was constructed as demanded by the city, it would cause the flooding of the streets and railroad tracks east of Broadway. Mr. Marshall stated that it would be impossible to flood the streets on the west if a tunnel was built, but he would admit that an embankment and bridge might cause the flooding of the railroad tracks east of Broadway, during high water. He also admitted that the bridge was constructed in pursuance to the plan of the Board of Public Improvements, but the board had transcended its powers in the premises and had not conformed to the law. Mr. Taussig, chief engineer in charge of the work, described at length the proposed bridge, that sufficient roadway was left on Broadway and the plans of the structure conformed to the plans of the Board of Public Improvements. It was also stated that the grade of Broadway at Bircher street had never been established by the city. A general argument followed, the main position of the city being that there was no authority for the construction of the bridge on the level with the street.

Judge Fisher intimated that it was clear that the Board of Public Improvements should confine its operations to the city ordinance under which it acted, but the question of estopel growing out of the non-action of the city while the bridge was being constructed, which has been raised by Mr. Overall, was a matter on which he would allow counsel to file briefs. The attorneys agreed to do so, and the case went over.

TEMPORARILY RESTRAINED.

An Injunction to Prevent a Salesman Working for a Rival Firm.

Judge Fisher to-day issued a temporary restraining order in the injunction suit begun by John Rettenmayer, during business as the Great Eastern Coffee and Tea Co., vs. Geo. H. Kreeger. Kreeger was an employee of the tea company, and it is alleged by Rettenmayer that he agreed in consideration of said employment he would not enter into the business of selling coffees or teas in the city of St. Louis on his own responsibility or for the account or benefit of any other person or persons, for a period of three months after said employment, but that he violated the terms of the agreement by entering the employment of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co.

Wants Charge of His Child.

Judge Fisher to-day began the hearing of testimony in the matter of who shall have the custody of the minor child of Gerald G. Smyth and Ada T. Smyth pending the disposition of a divorce suit between the parties. Smyth charges general indignities in his divorce suit, but claims in his application to be awarded the custody of the child before the case is disposed of that his wife is a drunkard, associates with bad characters and is unfit to care for the child. A large number of witnesses are on hand.

A Quarry Owner Sued.

Henry C. Koenig, with Rassieuer & Schnurmacher as counsel, sued Martin Lorenz in the Circuit to-day to recover $825 damages. Koenig lives at 3866 Kosciusko street and Lorenz owns a stone quarry adjoining. The former alleges that the latter, in operating a blast, blew down a stone wall belonging to him and converted the stone to his own use, for which he demands $150. He also says that a shower of stones from one of Lorenz's blasts demolished a shed belonging to him, for which he wants $175.

A $5,000 Damage Claim.

Mary Summerfield to-day began a $5,000 damage suit in the Circuit Court against the Laclede Fire Brick Manufacturing Co. on account of the killing of her husband, James Summerfield, May 30 last. Summerfield was in the employ of the company, and was engaged in moving clay, when an embankment fell on him.

Switch Engine and Street Car.

Switch engine No. 16 of the Frisco Railroad collided with a Missouri avenue electric car at 8:30 this morning at Tower Grove avenue. The boiler was badly damaged. Fortunately no one was on it. The accident was caused by the negligence of the gate-keeper, who had the gates up so that the car might pass.

Wants a Divorce.

Augustus T. M. Zenopolski began proceedings in the Circuit Court to-day to obtain a divorce from his wife, Maggie, whom he married in Minnesota Sept. 30, 1879, and with whom he lived until July 30, 1893. He alleges that she possesses a bad temper, persistently quarreled with him, accused him falsely of being a drunkard, and finally deserted him.

Two Runaway Boys.

John and Charles Schier, aged 13 and 16 respectively, are at the Mounted District Police Station. They ran away from their home at Hannibal several days ago, were found almost famished yesterday in the round house at Sutton Station. Their parents have been notified by wire of the boys' arrest, and an answer is momentarily expected.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 13.—The Convention of the Second Judicial district convened here this morning. Judge J. W. Stephens, the present incumbent, unanimously was elected to succeed himself as Associate Supreme Court Justice. The present Chairman, Hon. James W. Swayne, was chosen Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Second Judicial District.

A Wealthy Woman's Death.

PERU, Ind., Aug. 13.—Mrs. Mary Shirk, widow of E. J. Shirk, the millionaire banker of this State, died of a complication of diseases in this city last night aged 68. She was one of the wealthiest women in the Western States, her fortune being estimated at from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 in bank stock.

Taken From an Immoral Resort.

Blanche Elliott, 16 years old, was taken out of Mamie Adair's immoral resort at 1217 Chestnut street last night. To-day Mrs. Crawford of 1501 Market street, a cousin of the girl applied for a warrant against the Adair woman for harboring the girl, but the warrant was refused, as it could not be shown that the woman had enticed the girl, who was sent to the House of the Good Shepherd.

BLACKED HIS EYE.

Director Peckington of the Browns Lands on Director Peter Hauptmann.

Recent developments go to show that the encounter between Mrs. Von der Ahe and Kitty Myers in the grand stand at Sportsman's Park, as detailed in Eddie Von der Ahe's statement in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH, was not the only affair of the kind which escaped public notice. A scrap in which Peter Hauptmann, one of the Board of Directors, selected by President Von der Ahe ostensibly to assist in conducting the club's affairs, received a black eye, came to light yesterday. The good right of Col. John W. Peckington, according to the admission of Mr. Hauptmann, decorated the optic. The affair was carefully suppressed, as was the resignation of Mr. Hauptmann. When the latter was asked to-day if he had been assaulted by Col. Peckington on the occasion alluded to, he said:

"The affair occurred in this way. I had been made a director in the club against my wishes, and when I reluctantly accepted I found that we were figureheads, and that we were not consulted in the management. I attended only a few meetings after I realized the situation. On June 30 I sent in my written resignation and attended the meeting on that day to insist on its acceptance. When it had been read by Von der Ahe, its acceptance was moved by Mr. Peckington, who was a little the worse for drink. There was some discussion about the prices I had charged the club for cigars, and during the talk I was assaulted by Peckington. I had no idea that he intended to strike me, but as soon as he gave me a black eye I prepared to defend myself. The other directors separated us, and I immediately left the park. I have sold less cigars at the park this year than ever before. I did not attempt to use my position as a director to sell my goods. I recognized the fact that I knew nothing about the base ball business and wanted to get out. When there was talk of raising money I determined to resign, so as not to become involved financially. I considered I was taking enough chances in selling the institution goods on credit. I hear that Mr. Becker has advanced President Von der Ahe a large sum of money. He is away with the Browns on the trip."

AND MOLLIE WEPT

When Henry Liembrink and $700 Were Torn From Her Arms.

TALE OF WOE WHICH IS A SEQUEL TO THE ROMANCE OF THE SLUMS.

Henry Miller Paid Liembrink the Balance Due on His Check at the Four Courts To-Day, and Liembrink Then Bade His Bride a Long Farewell.

In Chief of Detectives Desmond's office today a scene took place in which Chief Harrigan acted in the role of the heavy villain, who came between a husband and a loving wife. The latter was Mrs. Henry Leimbrink, nee Mollie Dowling, of 902 Walnut street, an account of of whose romantic marriage was published in last Saturday's POST-DISPATCH. The groom, Henry Leimbrink, a cooper from Cleveland, O., sold his shop for $800 and started out to see the world. He stopped over in St. Louis and meeting Mollie, who prior to 20 years ago was a good and virtuous girl, married her last Tuesday. He regretted his choice almost immediately. Leimbrink had a check for $800 deposited with George W. Miller, a furniture dealer at 1015 Morgan street. Mollie owed Miller a bill, which Leimbrink agreed to pay. The check was on a Cleveland bank and Miller would not cash it until he heard from Cleveland. He advanced some money on it, however, making his bill against Leimbrink in all $100. Miller cashed the check to-day paying Leimbrink $700.

When Miller arrived at his store at 8:30 o'clock this morning he found Mollie there. About twenty minutes later her husband showed up. Leimbrink left his bride yesterday and stopped at a boarding-house near Thirteenth street and Franklin avenue last night. Since his marriage he has been living with his bride at Mollie's old quarters, excepting last Friday night, when he absented himself, causing much alarm to his bride, who appealed to the police to find him.

PAID AT THE FOUR COURTS.

Miller wanted to be secure in regard to paying the money to Leimbrink and took him to the Four Courts and paid over the money to him in Chief of Detectives Desmond's office, in presence of Detective Allender, Chief Desmond not being in. Mollie accompanied her spouse and was present when the money was paid to him. She insisted that he should support her. Liembrink took a seat in a chair and Mollie placed herself between him and the door. Chief Harrigan was sent for and asked what it all meant. Mollie said that she wanted her husband to support her.

"Do you love him?" asked the Chief.

"Yes sir," replied Mollie, rubbing her eyes with the corner of her cape and making an heroic effort to extract a tear.

"He—he—had no—business to marry me," sobbed she, "if he did not want to take care of me. I have knocked about for twenty years and I want to settle down."

Leimbrink at this point started to leave the room when Mollie caught him by the coat tail and held him. Chief Harrigan laid his hand on her arm and told her to let him go. The poor bride, overawed by the force of authority, relinquished her marital rights and watched her husband walk out of the office with $700 in his pocket, to a part of which she had a legal right as his lawful wife.

Leimbrink, before he left the building, stated to a POST-DISPATCH reporter that he did not know where he would go. He said that he intended remaining in the city for a couple of days, as he wanted to see a little more of the town. He said he did not get a chance to see much of the city because his wife would not let him out. He said that he was going to leave his money with a druggist, who was a friend of his, before starting out to see the sights again.

MOLLIE TRIES TO GET A WARRANT.

Mollie, after he had left, remained in Chief Desmond's office, though the police denied that she was detained. After Leimbrink left the building she was allowed to depart. She decided to apply for a warrant for abandonment and ascended to the third floor, where the Prosecuting Attorney's office is, and asked for the warrant, which was refused. She then left the building. She wept bitterly at the outcome of her marital escapade, and said that the notoriety which she has received has ruined her reputation.

REFUSED TO TALK.

Mrs. Von der Ahe Has Nothing to Say About the Family Row.

President Chris Von der Ahe of the Browns stated yesterday that his wife did not approve of the personal attack made on him by their son Eddie. According to Chris, Eddie is endeavoring to gain the sympathy of the public by posing as his mother's particular champion, but Mrs. Von der Ahe does not relish, the father says, the manner in which her son discussed certain private family matters. When seen this morning Mrs. Von der Ahe refused absolutely to have anything to say one way or the other concerning the trouble.

LAW AND WITCHCRAFT.

All Countries Have Had Laws Against the Exercise of Magical Power.

From the Chicago News.

The Greek laws, the Roman law of the twelve tables, the laws of every nation in Europe, Christian and pagan, provided penalties for the exercise of magical and diabolical arts. Most of these laws rendered the magicians themselves liable to be burned alive and those who cultivated them to crucifixion. Even the possession of magical books and apparatus was criminal. Astrologi (mathematici) were especially objectionable to both the pagan and Christian Emperors. In the Roman and Greek churches this form of exorcism of evil spirits still survives and was acknowledged by the Protestant Church of England as late as 1603. As late as the reign of George II. of England it was made a felony, without the benefit of clergy, to declare by witchcraft where treasure was, to provoke unlawful love, or to attempt to hurt cattle, goods or persons. The last trial of a witch in England was that of Jane Wenham in 1712. She was convicted at Hartford, but not executed. Coke, Bacon and Sir Matthew Hale were firm believers in witchcraft. Lord Seldon affirmed the statutory provisions on the subject. Shakespeare, Milton and others of the great literati of England were firm believers in the power of the departed to influence the living. Even to this day, in some of the States of this union, the form of criminal indictment acknowledges the potency of the devil in inciting to crime.

Witchcraft.

From the Chicago Record.

The law against witchcraft was minutely treated by continental jurists of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The last execution for witchcraft in Europe took place in Posen, in Germany, in 1793. In Scotland the articles of dittay (indictment) in the case of Margaret Wallace began by resting the criminality of sorcery upon the divine law as contained in the twentieth chapter of Leviticus and the eighteenth chapter of Deuteronomy. James VI. of Scotland (afterward James I. of England) was present at this trial. The last execution for witchcraft in Scotland took place in Sutherland in 1722.

DRINK OR ACCIDENT.

Death of Mrs. Kate Donovan to Be Investigated.

Mrs. Kate Donovan, aged 38 years, living with her husband and two children in the rear of 1428 North Seventh street, died at the City Hospital at 3:30 o'clock this morning. Whether her death is due to alcoholism or is the result of injuries received at 7 o'clock last evening in the house of a woman named Mrs. Reese, who lives next door to the Donovans, is not yet known. The police report of the case is that Mrs. Donovan was lying on the floor of Mrs. Reese's kitchen in an intoxicated condition. Hearing some noise in the alley she attempted to get up and fell against a stove, cutting a gash in the back of her head. She was taken to the hospital in an ambulance in an unconscious condition, in which state she remained until she died. Mrs. Reese, it is alleged, stated that a fight occurred in the back yard between two men. Mrs. Reese went out to see the fight and when she returned Mrs. Donovan was lying unconscious on the floor. Dr. Marks of the City Hospital thinks death was caused by alcoholism and was not due to the scalp wound or any injury. A post mortem inquest will be held to-morrow morning.

HIT TWICE.

Henry Landwehr Collides With an Electric Car and Is Fined.

Henry Landwehr was driving a horse attached to a spring wagon far north on Broadway yesterday afternoon, and when up in Baden he turned his horse off toward the west side of the street and he pulled his vehicle right in front of a south bound electric car. A disastrous collision occured in which Landwehr was badly scratched and bruised, his wagon damaged and the dashboard of the car broken. After Landwehr's injuries had been doctored he was arrested by Officer Lee on a charge of careless driving. He was brought before Judge Paxson this morning and on the testimony of Conductor John Brown fined $10. He is said to be a gardener.

LIZZIE SMITH'S ILLNESS.

City Hospital Physicians Pronounce It a Case of Drunkenness.

Officer Sheehy of the Central District saw a woman lying on the sidewalk at Sixteenth street and Clark avenue about 3½ o'clock this morning apparently in great suffering. She was vomiting profusely. Another woman was bending over her in a very much frightened condition. Upon inquiring, the officer was told a rather peculiar tale.

The girls said they were chambermaids at the Southern Hotel. The sick one gave her name as Lizzie Smith, and her friend as Ella Williams. Having a Sunday off, they took their way out to Forest Park, where they were induced by two young men to indulge in some drinks. They only took two glasses of wine apiece, but Lizzie, upon drinking hers, became very ill, whereupon their escorts left them. They hired a cab, but at Sixteenth street and Clark avenue the cabman forced them to get out.

Officer Sheehy sent them both to the City Hospital, where the physicians were unkind enough to think that Lizzie's illness was the result of overindulgence in the flowing bowl.

RETURNING KELLYITES.

They Apply at the Mayor's Office for Assistance.

Commonwealers on their way home have reached St. Louis. This morning several members of a detachment of Kelly's army called on Mayor Walbridge and asked to be given assistance. One of the men exhibited a letter from J. B. Matchett, who formerly managed several charity schemes in St. Louis and against whom several complaints were made during his residence here.

Mayor Walbridge informed the Kellyites that he never assisted anyone and that he could not do anything for them. They then asked for a permit to camp, but were told that no permit would be necessary.

OHM IN CHARGE.

The Chief Deputy Assumes Control of Mr. Scully's Office.

Deputy Assessor Chas. F. Ohm assumed charge of the Water Rates Office this morning.

The successor of Mr. Scully has not been decided upon. Mayor Walbridge said that he would not make the appointment immediately.

PLENTY OF FIGHTING.

Dr. Jordan Dressed Wounds for Twenty-Three Patients Last Night.

Last night was a busy one at the City Hospital and at the City Dispensary. Five patrol wagons were at the Dispensary at one time, and the ambulance horses were almost worn out by frequent and hasty trips. Dr. Jordan at the Dispensary dressed the wounds of twenty-three persons who had been victims of more or less disagreeable circumstances.

POOR CROPS.

The Weekly Report of the Indiana Weather Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 13.—The weekly report issued to-day of the Indiana Weather Service, shows a discouraging crop situation. The rains of Friday and Saturday were heavy enough only in a very few localities to do good. Corn on low lands is still fair, but that on light clay or gravel soil is beyond recovery, and in some counties it has been cut for fodder. Tobacco is suffering severely for rain. Potatoes are far less promising than earlier in the summer. Stock is suffering on account of the burnt-up condition of the pasturage.

Ohio River Valley Drought.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 13.—The drought in the Ohio River Valley, especially in Western Pennsylvania, is said by old settlers to be severer than at any time since 1854, when only one light rain fell between March and August. The rainfall for July, 1894, was 1.19 inches. The nearest remembered approach to this in recent years was 1.89 inches in 1883. Farmers are feeding their cattle, the pastures having dried up. The corn and potato crops need rain badly. River wells have given out and are in some instances being bored deeper. Prayers are being offered at the country churches for rain.

Rain Needed.

ST. JACOB, Ill., Aug. 13.—In spite of the dry weather the corn here looks fairly well, but if rain does not come soon only about 75 per cent of a crop will be raised.

STOLEN POSTAGE STAMPS.

Post-Office Authorities Arrest Three Men at Winfield, Kan.

Post-Office Inspector Joe P. Johnson received a report from Inspector Cochran to-day, stating that he had arrested William and Claude Copeland at Winfield, Kan., on the charge of having stolen postage stamps in their possession, and Oliver Williams on the charge of attempting to sell stolen postage stamps. The accused were put under bond for hearing on the 20th inst.

CORRUPTION IN SIOUX CITY.

The Startling Testimony of Deputy Auditor Roberts.

SIOUX CITY, Io., Aug. 13.—Every day brings a new sensation in the County investigation. Ex-Deputy Auditor Roberts who testified to many sensational facts about the corruption in the county offices did not appear for a continuation of the examination this morning. He had not been under arrest, although the county officials had threatened to have him arrested. The attorneys for the prosecution, who introduced him as their witness, say they know where he is, but little credence is placed in the statement. It is generally believed he has left the country and is on the way to Canada, fearing he will be prosecuted and convicted on his own confession. If he is not found the prosecution will find it hard to make its case complete.

Contesting Maria Schrader's Will.

Proceedings were begun in the Circuit Court to-day by Christian Anthony Schrader et al. vs. Louise Hoevel et al., contesting the will of Marie Schrader, who died May 5 last, leaving a large estate. The petition alleges that for a long time prior to her death the testatrix was under the undue influence of Louise Hoevel and was enfeebled by age to such an extent as to be incapable of understanding how to properly transact her affairs or dispose of her property.

Missing Girls.

Pauline Lessing, aged 16, left her home, 1132 North Nineteenth street, two days ago and her present whereabouts are unknown. It is thought she has gone astray.

Katie Househalt, aged 17, left her home, 810 South Seventh street, on July 12 last and has not been back since. About two weeks ago her mother saw her at Mrs. Krause's, 1218 Goode avenue, but the girl ran away.

Edward Johnson, Thomas Strote and Thomas Kennett were held in $800 bonds each on charges of burglary and larceny. John Tarpey and Theo Otto were held in $500 bonds each on a charge of burglary and larceny.

Air Line Attorneys Here.

Allin, chief engineer, and J. R. Semple, superintendent, are also in the city. Mr. Iglehart stated that their business was purely of a private nature.

Railroad Notes.

The Central Traffic Association announces that the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad has finally declined to unite with the lines of the Chicago East-bound Committee in maintaining the tourist fares to Niagara Falls and Chautauqua as agreed upon by the association roads. Instead of accepting the association rates, the Nickel Plate has announced a tourist rate of $19.50 to Chautauqua and $20 to Niagara Falls.

The cost of reorganizing railroads appears to be enormous. In the case of the Atchison the reorganization committee is to receive $1,000,000 for expenses. The underwriting syndicate plans to assume the $12 share assessment, amounting to $12,000,000 for 5 per cent, netting $600,000. Thus the cost of starting the Atchison under the present plan will be $1,600,000 for preliminary work.

The United States District Court at Topeka, Kan., has authorized the Atchison to sell town lots in La Junta and elsewhere. The Atchison has 40,000 acres of land in Western Kansas.

CHRIS VON DER AHE

The Important Part He Has Played in Base Ball.

THE ONLY MAN TO BRING THE LEAGUE TO TERMS.

Autocrat of the American Association, He Conducted the Fight Which Resulted in the Formation of the Twelve-Club League—Last Eastern Trip On—Retirement of Jockey Charley Thorpe—General Sport.

Chris Von der Ahe was one time the most notable figure in the base ball world. By his enterprise, liberality and aggressiveness he did what no other man has accomplished—made the National League sue for peace and accept it on his own terms. As the autocrat of the American Association, Mr. Von de Ahe shaped its policy and led it in its war with its powerful rival. When after the settlement of the Brotherhood war the League invaded the American Association's territory by putting a team in Cincinnati, "der boss President" not only equipped a club in Porkopolis from his own resources, but by his influence succeeded in bringing about the co-operation of men o wealth in the establishment of an American Association team in Boston, a League stronghold. During the troublesome times of the Brotherhood war Mr. Von der Ahe, after the refusal of the players to take him into that organization, dictated the hands-off policy by which the League was enabled to survive. With the treachery which has always characterized that body, the League repaid the American Association by beginning to steal its players. When the action of the Pittsburg Club in pirating Bierbauer of the Athletics and Reilly of Columbus was approved by the League, Von der Ahe, in behalf of the Association, declared war to the knife and waged it so successfully, although at a great financial loss to himself, that the magnates of the League asked for a conference with a view of bringing about a settlement. They had learned to respect and fear the fighting qualities of the man whom they had derisively alluded to as the "Wooden-shoed Dutchman." When overtures were made to Mr. Von der Ahe his answer was characteristic: "If the League has anything to offer the 'wooden-shoed' Dutchman can be found at the corner of St. Louis and Grand avenues. I'll not go anywhere to meet your representatives. Come to me."

Chris Von der Ahe.

* * *

And they came, and the twelve-club league was formulated in the rear room of the saloon in the corner building of the property now under mortgage to the Northwestern Bank for $44,000, a large part of which debt was incurred in carrying on the fight against the league. Mr. Von der Ahe, during the Brotherhood war, organized clubs in Rochester, Syracuse and other cities to take the places of deserters. His energy was unflagging, and whenever signs of weakening cropped out Chris hastened to the spot with words of encouragement. When financial aid was needed the local owners would receive the indorsement of the President of the St. Louis Club to notes for large sums, which they would negotiate at the banks. His resources were seemingly unlimited and the League was brought to terms. The old League's sinister methods were pursued in the twelve-club league. Boston stole Stivetts and McCarthy away from the St. Louis Club. Then Mr. Von der Ahe began to retaliate and signed Gleason, Buckley, Jack Glasscock and Brodie. When he protested at the League meeting against the manner in which he lost the services of Stivetts, McCarthy and other stars he was "jollied" into acquiescing.

The career of the St. Louis Club as a member of the twelve-club League has been marked by reverses during every season. It has never held a respectable position in the race after the second month of play. St. Louisans have been loyal to the club in its adversity in the hope that the man who had downed the League would show some of his former energy and liberality in building up the team.

When the new Sportsman's Park was built it was predicted among the cranks that Mr. Von der Ahe would redeem his oft-made promise of giving St. Louis a first-class team. Instead of buying talent, he sold his best men. The man who bought a whole team to get the services of a single player—Dave Foutz—has never paid out more than $500 at a time, and then but seldom, for a player, since he bought Chamberlin from Louisville in 1888. The sale of Foutz, Caruthers and Bushong, Brodie, Gleason, Glasscock and other stars have netted him over $50,000. His luck has been proverbial. Unheard of youngsters developed into stars within a season of donning a St. Louis uniform. Breitenstein, Hawley, Peitz and Cooley are illustrations. If Mr. Von der Ahe will but show one-half the enterprise which characterized his early experience in the base ball world, he can depend upon such liberal support from St. Louisans, that his coffers will soon be refilled. He has the nucleus of a winning team. The expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money for players would put the Browns on even terms with teams which now outclass them. The public does not demand pennant-winners but it will refuse to support tail-enders. Mr. Von der Ahe can not hope to succeed with an unsuccessful team. The cranks want a run for their money, and unless he gives it to them they will stay at home.

* * *

The last Eastern trip is on. The Browns open at New York to-morrow and finish the week at Brooklyn. Ely will join the team at once, and as Joe Quinn is playing great ball the St. Louis club will once more have a good infield, as Miller will be at third if Denny Lyons is not secured. President Von der Ahe will leave to-night to relieve Secretary Munson, who has had charge of the Browns.

A Dirty Deal.

The Real Estate ball team gave a picked team of South End ball players a dirty deal last Saturday afternoon on the field, corner of Laclede and Taylor avenues. The score was 12 to 14 in favor of the real estate men. The features of the game were the batting of Jack Adams and the battery work of Quinn and Adams.

The League Race.

The standing of the league clubs at noon to-day was as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Boston	59	32	.648	Brooklyn	47	44	.516
Baltimore	57	32	.640	Cincinnati	42	49	.462

Yesterday's Games.

he Browns won the last game of their series Cincinnati yesterday. The record for the sea seven games for Cincinnati and five for St. Miller's men made more than enough runs eighth and ninth innings than was necessary. Breitenstein and Parrott were the oppo hers. The score: is 12, Cincinnati 5. Base hits—St. Louis 13, Errors—St. Louis 2, Cincinnati 7.

The Colts put up an errorless game against Cleveland and won by a score of 16 to 5.

To-Day's Games.

Bostons at Brooklyn.
New Yorks at Baltimore.
Washingtons at Philadelphia.

Base Ball Notes.

Quinn accepted nine chances without an error yesterday. Joe made one break in Saturday's game.

This is a great record for a man who had not played for eleven days.

Painter, a Cincinnati amateur, played center field for the Browns yesterday.

Roger Connor again led the batting. His record was a home run and two singles.

Shugart has shown that he can play shortstop. Why not adopt Barnie's suggestions and make a third baseman of Ely?

The Eastern League is in trouble. The Binghamton Club has withdrawn and Toronto team will take its place.

The Western clubs are on their way East to-day.

Louisville has traded Pitcher Menafee to Pittsburg for Colcolough and $1,500.

Denny Lyons has probably been indulging in a periodical.

The Baltimores may yet wrest the lead from Boston.

New York is apparently out of the race.

Among the Amateurs.

The DeSoto Blanks defeated the Browns Reserves yesterday by a score of 10 to 2. Fred Blank was an enigma to the Reserves.

The Midways defeated the Tweddle Stars yesterday by a score of 26 to 5. The batting of Oggie was a feature. The Midways would like to hear from Kuhlmeyer's Sluggers. Address 2323 Blair avenue.

THORPE WILL RETIRE.

The Scoggan Jockey Tired of Constant Reducing—Track Talk.

Charlie Thorpe, Scoggan Bros.' jockey, who is one of the best known riders on the Western circuit, has determined to retire at the end of this season. In an interview on the subject recently he had this to say:

"I've made up my mind to quit the business this fall. Any other life than the half-starved existence of the jockey is better even if not so remunerative. It is nearly killing me to constantly deprive my system of the nourishment it craves to keep reducing to weight. It is unnatural and the warning comes sometimes too late. In the case of Jimmy McLaughlin it came in time to cause him to break the provisions of a contract made with George Hankins to ride his horses, but the horse-owner understood McLaughlin's system better than he did himself and very generously drew a check for the time McLaughlin was to have ridden and presented it to Jimmy with the injunction not to reduce again or he would lose his health. The very sight of a big dinner makes me sick at heart, for I know the delicacies in the shape of roast beef and mashed potatoes—not delicacies to many, it is true—are not for me. Success has not followed my efforts of late in riding. Try as hard as I can I cannot win the mounts I used to, and each day in the jockey room I hear the younger fry poking fun at 'Newspaper Thorpe.' 'Huh, Charley Thorpe done also ran agin. He ain't no shucks of a rider. Guess he nebbah did win a race 'cept in the newspapahs,' is the way some have expressed it. But careful riding and jockeyship do not win races as often now as they used to do. There are many young jockeys riding who are as much surprised at the end of a race as the bettors to be announced the winners. This discourages me, and I guess I'll desert the business before I get killed."

John R. Gentry of Sedalia, Mo., has sold his celebrated pacer John R. Gentry, with a record of 2:09½, to J. F. Scott, one of the proprietors of the Alamance Stock Farm, Graham, N. C., for $10,000. M. E. McHenry drove John R. Gentry for Mr. Gentry, and with McHenry handling the ribbons the crack pacer was never defeated. Jim Ramey drove the horse in the 2:12 class pace at Buffalo Saturday and he finished second to the unbeaten Joe Patchen, who was forced to reduce his record twice by the Missouri horse. The latter's defeat is attributed to the change of drivers. John R. Gentry is one of the speediest pacers Missouri has ever sent out on the big trotting circuit.

The Jerome Park service costs race track foreign books $100 per day for reporting fees alone. This is just twice as much as the Saratoga and Hawthorne service costs and the foreign book managers are making a big howl in consequence. Saratoga and Hawthorne both furnish much better betting cards than Jerome Park. The latter track is controlled by Mike Dwyer, and the horses campaigned by him and Richard Croker are the only really high classed performers there. Providing soft spots for them results in poor betting races, but Mike Dwyer will persist in pursuing this policy as long as the public and bookmakers stand it. The $100 per day charges for pool-room service have been in vogue for a number of years at the tracks controlled by the Dwyer Bros.

William P. Magrane, the St. Louis horse owner and bookmaker, had a row the other day with his jockey, Blaylock, which resulted in the latter leaving Magrane's employ. According to reports, the trouble was caused by Magrane charging Blaylock with "pulling" his filly Ta Ta in her race behind Flying Dutchman. Those who ought to know say that, although Magrane's filly is very fast, she has no license to beat Flying Dutchman and Dorah Wood, both of whom finished ahead of her in the race Magrane and Blaylock quarreled about. Magrane has had trouble with several jockeys this season. Blaylock is now riding for Ed Corrigan.

Track Talk.

Chevalier, the clever California lightweight jockey, has been engaged by Senator O'Brien to ride for his stable.

The promptness with which Starter Rowe is getting his fields away at Jerome Park is said to be remarkable.

The track at Jerome is so dusty as to make it actually unsafe. An accident is liable to occur on some of the turns unless the management expends a little money on a few watering carts.

The investigation of the horse Aristides, not allowed to start at Hawthorne Friday because its identity could not be established, is still under way, with little progress made. J. Smith, in whose name Aristides was entered, is hunting up proof of his claims that the animal is no "ringer."

Speaking of a race for non-winners in the last two years on the Saratoga card, a Gotham writer says: "There is no doubt that this race will fill, but what wretched 'hair trunks' it will bring out. Even the trainers, who will directly benefit, have been laughing at the idea of giving out such conditions when there are good horses galore on the ground only waiting for a chance to race."

From all accounts they have some beauty brights among the bookmakers at Saratoga. It is said that one or two of them cannot figure their tickets as they take in the money. The following conversation is said to have taken place recently. Plunger (handing up $15 on a 3 to 5 shot): "Here! Derfargilla." Bookmaker (handing money to ticket writer): "Derfargillar, twelf to fife, dree times; make out the ticket, quick."

THE NATIONAL MEET.

St. Louis Cyclists Who Will Be at Denver.

The national meet of wheelmen began in Denver this morning, and that city is en fete in welcome to the star cyclists of the country. All the wheelmen of note will take part in the races which begin Thursday and continue Friday and Saturday.

Among the St. Louis delegation who left last night or who will start to-night are Secretary-Treasurer W. M. Butler, L. W. Conkling, W. E. Schultz, C. C. Hildebrand, L. D. Cabanne, E. N. Beach, E. A. Grath, L. E. Anderson, A. G. Harding, A. Baur, William Stock, D. W. Robert, H. A. Canfield, W. L. Sachtleben, R. J. Leacock, T. J. Dempsey, C. M. Craninger, J. W. Bowman, T. J. Kennedy, J. R. Schultz and A. Schrieber.

Cabanne, Grath, Anderson and Harding are the St. Louis entries for the races, and good accounts are expected from them. C. C. Hildebrand, W. M. Butler, D. W. Robert and A. J. Hellmich will go out as special agents for St. Louis' big tournament on Aug. 25, and will endeavor to secure a big bunch of additional entries.

The Day's Programme.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 13.—It is estimated that at least 4,000 wheelmen will be here when the races begin Thursday. An informal reception will be given the wheelmen to-day and souvenirs distributed. They will be escorted to places of interest this afternoon. All the fast men, except Tyler and Johnson, will take part in the races. Among those already here are Livingstone and Caughey, who wheeled from McKeesport, Pa., a distance of 1,704 miles, in three weeks.

BEAT THE SCHEDULE.

The Relay Race Finished in Remarkably Fast Time—Cyclists' Comments.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 13.—Wheelmen are delighted with the record made in carrying the President's message from Washington City to this city. The distance is 2,037 miles and was made in 6d. 10h. 37m., a gain of 37 hours and 23 minutes over scheduled time. All records for the distance were broken. The streets were thronged with people when George M. McCarthy, the last rider, arrived.

HONORS TO KOENIG.

America's Champion Amateur Oarsman to Be Received Royally.

When Fred Koenig, the champion amateur sculler of America, arrives at the Union Depot to-morrow night, he will meet with a royal reception. The Western Rowing Club, of which Koening is a member, at a meeting held yesterday, appointed a committee of three, consisting of L. F. Hammer, Pete Blattner and Henry Keune, to arrange a programme. It was decided to meet Koenig at the depot with carriages and a brass band and escort him to the club house, where a banquet will be served. Appropriate speeches will be delivered. Not a word has been heard from the champion since he gained his present honors, but there is no apprehension about him in the minds of his clubmates.

It was also decided to accept the Modocs' challenge for the Faust Cup, but the proposed race for the Junior fours will hardly come off. Mr. Lamp of the Westerns is in ill-health and cannot stand the hardship of training. As the Modocs' challenge was directed to the four which beat them at Clifton Terrace it cannot be accepted. Mr. Lamp's place in the barge crew will be taken by Pat Sheehan or Frank Dumerth. The date has not been decided.

CORBETT IS INCONSISTENT.

Peter Jackson Says He Was Willing to Fight Ten Rounds Two Years Ago.

"I notice that Brady gives as one reason for Corbett not accepting an offer for a twenty-round go in England that Corbett is a finish fighter pure and simple," says Peter Jackson. "I wonder does Brady remember inviting me to meet Corbett in a ten-round fight in New York at a time when I was getting ready to go to England and fight Slavin? Corbett must have made finish fighting his specialty since then. As to the length of the fight, I would rather have it to a finish than any other way, but failing this, it appears to me that a twenty-round match, with the provision that there must be a winner, is a pretty good thing. It will make a man fight if he cares anything about the decision. Corbett, I notice, didn't have half as much to say about the fight as Brady. That wasn't bad, however, when he expressed annoyance at my not being in New York to meet him. I wonder does he think that he is free to ignore all our arrangements and travel where he likes and that I must be dancing attendance on him year after year.

"As to Corbett's remark that he wants to meet me personally and talk business, I am quite in accord with him. We will understand each other better if we discuss the matter ourselves, and as I understand he remains in New York until Aug. 16, we will discuss the whole business in a manly way, I hope. I don't blame Corbett because there is no suitable place in sight just now where we can fight, but, as I said before, I consider he and those around him did not try to bring matters to a head before he went away."

South Sides' Swimming Party.

Hot weather interfered greatly with the attendance on the club runs yesterday and but few members were out on the roads. The run of the South Sides to Creve Cœur Lake was postponed till next Sunday. For this week Cap. Wills has arranged a swimming party at the Concordia Natatorium for Tuesday night. Members are requested to report at the club rooms with their wheels by 8 p. m. Big preparations have been made to make the affair a success and some impromptu swimming races will be held. For Thursday evening a moonlight run to Schoenlau's Grove is on the card and "bier, schmierkaese und club politics" will be provided in abundance. Riders living on the South Side are cordially invited to participate in these outings, starting at 8 p. m. sharp.

Sporting Notes.

Joe Walcott, the colored lightweight champion, appears to be unable to get on a match with any man in his class.

Jimmy Carroll of Brooklyn will train Jack McAuliffe for his coming match with "Young" Griffo.

Billy Myer, the "Streator Cyclone," has asked Capt. Williams of the Auditorium Club of New Orleans, to match him against Stanton Abbott, the English lightweight champion.

Arthur Valentine, the English featherweight, is anxious to come to this country and show Americans how he can fight. He has asked the Olympic Club of New Orleans to match him against any featherweight in America.

The annual races of the National Swimming Association will take place in Philadelphia on Aug. 18. The programme of events is as follows: 100-yard race, handicap; quarter mile race, handicap; 220-yard race, scratch; one mile race, handicap.

Billy Delaney, Corbett's trainer, in talking about the champion's chances in a battle with Jackson, said: "Why, that fellow Jackson won't fight. If he does, though, Jim will lick him to a certainty. Mark me, Jim will do Jackson quick. I predicted that he would easily defeat Mitchell, and I was right, wasn't I?"

The Vigilant and Britannia will sail for the cup offered by Lord Wolverton on Wednesday.

GLAD TO GET THEM BACK.

Pullman Employes Returning to Their Old Places.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The gates of the Pullman Co.'s big plant at Pullman were besieged this morning by a host of the striking employes, who came seeking work and who signified their willingness to go back to their old positions.

At 9 o'clock the foreman found that he had 1,788 men on hand ready for work. Others who are competent and willing are to be given work just as fast as those parts of the works now closed can be started up.

All old employes returning will get their places back until the full quota of men needed is at work. As the full number of men is but 2,000, the officials of the company feel certain that it will not be long before the work will be running full blast again.

Among those who returned were 200 Swedes, skilled workmen, to whom the company was glad to give places.

Lebanon Notes.

LEBANON, Ill., Aug. 13.—An unknown man was overcome by the heat in Summerfield. He died before medical aid could be procured.

The ladies of the M. E. Church gave a lawn party.

The contract for the erection of a new iron bridge across Silver Creek, one mile west of here, has been let to the St. Louis Iron and Bridge Co.

The Bennett coal mine is in operation again. It has been idle for over three months, and the miners have lost several thousand dollars in wages. The old scale of wages was adopted, with a promise of a raise at the end of the month.

Haying parties are all the rage with the young people of this city. A spirit of rivalry exists between the young ladies, who have organized themselves into two organizations of about a dozen members each. Each endeavors to outdo the other in every way possible. They have an outing or entertainment alternately and, owing to a scarcity of young men, each crowd has the same ones. It is needless to say that the young men are enjoying themselves.

CARMODY'S Union Station Branch Saloon is the finest and most elegantly equipped place of its kind in the city. Call and inspect it and examine goods. Only the best is kept here.

MARRIED AT CLAYTON.

George Ostertag and Olivia De Gaetani Secured a County License.

George W. Ostertag and Miss Olivia De Gaetani, both of this city, went to Clayton last Monday afternoon, secured a marriage license from Deputy Recorder Peter Wetzel and were married. Mr. Ostertag is a well-known florist. He was until two months ago a partner in the firm of L. Maunt & Co., florists at 104 North Twelfth street, and lived at 2834 Washington avenue. Miss de Gaetani lived with her mother at 2655 Morgan street, and was employed by her half-sister, Miss Terese Badaracco, in her flower store at 1816 Olive street. They kept the story of their marriage as quiet as possible, it seems, but the news leaked out.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter called at Mrs. Badarecco's, at Maunt's and at the De Gaetani home, but everyone seen smilingly refused to discuss the case or tell why the couple went to Clayton for their license. Ostertag is a man of 26, while his bride is described as a beautiful dark-eyed brunette of 20. A strange coincidence in connection with this wedding is that Mr. Maunt's wife died last Friday, just a few days after his former partner's marriage. He took her remains to Iowa for interment Saturday night, and has not since returned.

WARRANT FOR A JUDGE.

Mr. Wall Charges a Starkloff Man With Being a Non-Resident.

Mr. L. J. W. Wall, who heads the opposition to Dr. Starkloff in the Thirteenth Ward, went to the Four Courts this morning accompanied by his attorney, Mr. Eugene McQuillan, and applied for a warrant for the arrest of one of the Starkloff judges at to-day's primary election. The charge was that the person was not a resident of the ward, and could not, therefore, lawfully act as a judge of election there. The warrant was issued, but the name of the person named therein was withheld until the arrest should be made. Dr. Max Starkloff was advised of this action and stated that both of the judges acting for his faction were old residents of the ward. One, he said, is Sprinkling Inspector Lowenstein and the other Wm. Etling, the general committeeman of the ward. Neither of them, the doctor insisted, were open to the charge of being non-residents. Lowenstein, Dr. Starkloff said, had lived in the ward for twenty-five years. He is believed to be the man named in the warrant.

William Keller of Carondelet was arrested last night at Broadway and Stein street on complaint of Benjamin Loewenstein, a clothier at 7611 South Broadway, charged with disturbing the peace. The case was docketed in the Carondelet Police Court this morning, but a continuance was secured. According to Lowenstein his difficulty with Keller is the result of a foul plot on the part of "Uncle Filley's" adherents to prevent him acting as one of Dr. Starkloff's judges in to-day's primary.

Keller, who weighs about 200 pounds, got after the clothing man Saturday and treated him pretty roughly, but no complaint was made. Last night the dose was repeated. Loewenstein took refuge behind the law.

MAY BE HIS FATHER.

Fears of Peter Huck Concerning the Man Found Dead at East St. Louis.

Joseph Huck of Belleville came to East St. Louis to-day to make inquiry in regard to the unknown man who was found dead near the M. & O. tracks last Thursday night. He feared that the body might be that of his father, Anton Joseph Huck, a carpenter who left Belleville several weeks ago to seek employment at his trade, and had not since communicated with the family. The published description of the body tallied very well with the elder Huck's appearance except as to height, and the son thought there might have been some mistake about that. His father was not 6 feet tall, as the body was described, but he decided to have the body exhumed for identification. After making arrangements for the disinterment of the body to-morrow, he went home to obtain exact information about his father's clothing.

Thieves entered the private office of Frank Bloom at the race track last night and stole about $25 from a cash register. Bloom runs the bar at the track and has an office under the grand stand. He owns John Hickey and made a good winning on the victory of that horse Saturday. It is supposed the thieves expected to make a good haul, thinking Bloom might have left his "roll" in his office, but they only secured the change left in the bar register.

A craps game at the house of William Cleary, colored, alias "Cairo Bill," on First street, near St. Clair avenue, was raided last night by the police and seven negroes were arrested.

An Old Hero Gone.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—George W. Waite, the oldest man in the service sailing from this port as a marine engineer, died last night. During the war he was chief engineer of the man-of-war Monticello. He supervised the cutting of the chains across the Mississippi River to admit Union vessels into New Orleans.

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear,"
Full many an "ad" hath profitable been,
When to the P.-D. with it one did repair.

THE trust wins hands down and behind the back.

WHEN Peffer and Hill vote together Uncle Samuel strokes his whiskers.

LEVI MORTON would do well to size up the McKinley boom before he makes himself certain.

ASTOR'S paper says the Vigilant has been cheating. Albion should be proud of her adopted son.

THE "home market" campaign fund of Alabama must have got into the hands of the wrong Pantata.

THE Senate conspirators have put a taint on the word "conservative" that is likely to stay with it.

THERE should be ample provisions for feeding the Excelsior crowd. It will be an exceedingly hungry one.

IT is known how much the Senate's victory is worth to the trusts, but what their attorneys make out of it is a matter of speculation.

A TREACHEROUS and purchasable Senate was not thought of when the founders of the Republic approved the present method of choosing senators.

GORMAN is repudiated and repudiated and repudiated in his own State of Maryland, but the date of the expiration of his term still stands at '99.

"SEE that I am paired in favor of the tariff bill," telegraphed Senator Irby. The South Carolina statesman has been among the voters lately.

IT is comforting to know that in spite of the prostration of our American industries the price of a vote in the Republican primaries can be kept up to $2.

SUPPOSE Senator Vest's suggestion to "turn the calcium light of truth on the work of the Conference Committee" were adopted—what a rush to cover there would be!

THE Republican factions should refrain from stuffing the ballot boxes on each other to-day. Ballot box stuffing should only be tolerated in a contest with the common enemy.

ADLAI STEVENSON has made himself useful by knocking out the bald-headed Mephisto from New York. Nothing could help the Adlai boom more than a statesmanlike vote when there is a tie.

WITH Collis Huntington and George M. Pullman in charge of the widows and orphans of the United States, all other benevolent combinations for the benefit of the helpless would retire with a blush.

IT is depressing to hear that Senator Hoar and the Boston Home Market Club blew in $100,000 on the Alabama election. It is not credible that if the colored voters got all this they refused to vote for Kolb.

THE deals of speculators by which the price of corn is forced up are treated as matters of slight importance to the people in general. Yet corn is both meat and bread, and every home in the country feels the effect of tampering with its price.

MR. FILLEY'S charge that it has been Mr. Chartrand's ambition to provide places for members of the Chartrand family is not a serious matter. There have been Republican Presidents even who have worked the Government for their relatives.

APROPOS of suicide prompted by disease, Dr. Robertson suggests that "there ought to be a national commission, or something like it, through which physicians could obtain permission, when their judgment suggested that it was proper, to put patients beyond the reach of suffering." Doubtless Dr. Robertson's idea is to obtain public and official sanction for the results of private practice.

THE belief of the Chinese that when the Manchus go out of power there will be no more plagues, fires, floods or bad harvests is not unlike that of the minority party in the United States. We are made more like the Chinese than we are willing to admit.

OLNEY is reported to be thinking about holding the railroads to accountability for their violation of the interstate commerce law. What else has Olney done but to think about it? Ever since his entrance on the stage of public life his part in the enforcement of the law against railroads has been a "thinking part."

THE House may now partly atone for its enforced acceptance of the Senate bill by promptly passing a short supplementary bill putting sugar, coal and iron ore on the free list and including as many as possible of the Wilson bill reductions. This will straighten out the record of the House and throw upon the Gorman squad of Senators and their Republican abettors the entire responsibility for the trust bounty features of the Gorman-Brice bill.

BETTER THAN CAMPAIGNING.

The result that has come out of the disgraceful tariff situation in Congress has compensating features of great value.

The efforts of the wisest men in American public life and of the leading independent newspapers have been directed for years to the task of teaching the American people the corrupting influence of protection and monopoly legislation. The bitter fruits of the policy of granting governmental favors to private interests have been pointed out with faithful persistence. It has been shown that there is no end to the greed which fattens on monopoly and public plunder and that money obtained through legislative favors will be used to purchase a continuation and an increase of such favors. It inevitably and under an unchangeable law of nature and politics finds its way into all the channels of corruption by which Government may be controlled for private ends.

The situation in Washington is an object lesson which flashes the light of experience on the teachings of wisdom. Now that the people have been convinced of the folly and wrong of monopoly taxation they find themselves unable to get rid of it. The accomplishment of their will is barred by the creatures of their favor. The monopolies which were created and nourished by their generosity have become their masters. The little finger of a tax-fattened trust is thicker than the loins of the whole people.

A majority of the American people have demanded the abolition of monopoly taxes. The President and a majority of the people's representatives are striving to gain this end. But four men, with the power and wealth of protected trusts back of them, dictate legislation.

The best work that honest public men can do now is to fix the odium of this outrage where it belongs, and impress its lesson on the minds of the voters. It is worth ten years of ordinary political campaigning.

NOTHING BUT A TRADITION.

Testimony of a surprising nature comes from Americans who have gone to England to compete with their British cousins in sport contests.

The Yale athletic team complain that Oxford violated the understanding in the contest of collegians by entering against the Yale boys the pick of half a dozen English colleges. Their treatment on the field was exceedingly unkind. The American marksmen assert that the strongest birds were reserved for them and were released from the most distant traps, everything in fact was done to aid the British marksmen. Mr. Gould and the Vigilant crew are bitter in their reflections on the manner in which they were treated in the yacht races. There seemed to be a combined effort to beat down the Vigilant by competitors and English spectators. The boat was driven on the shoals, the wind was taken out of her sails, and she was obstructed in every possible way. When she won against all odds, her victory was received with sullen silence.

Even the British Navy is not without the reproach of ungenerous conduct. The crew of the Chicago, which defeated several unbeaten British crews in the naval regatta, won without a sign of approval or encouragement.

It is hard for Englishmen who have looked upon themselves as the easy champions of every field of physical prowess and skill to see the despised Yankees take their honors. But the essential elements of true sportsmanship are absolute fair play and generous recognition of superior skill and strength. It is vitiated by the slightest taint of unfairness and jealous animosity.

John Bull must mend his ways or the traditional fair play of the British sportsman will become nothing but a tradition.

AN esteemed contemporary which poses as the organ of Missouri Democracy while serving as the organ of a few ambitious Democrats, thinks it is too early to talk about the choice of a Senator by the people in 1897. So it is for the few ambitious Democrats. If the attention of the people is not aroused too soon to this matter these ambitious Democrats can get their deals fixed up so that they can defeat all efforts to secure popular participation in the senatorial election. This same newspaper, which thinks it too early for Missouri Democrats to think about the method of selecting their Senator, never indicated that the subject could be taken up too early when the choice of a Senator by the Illinois Democrats was concerned. It rose with the lark at the peep of dawn to pipe about the benefits of popular nomination in that State.

NO DOUBT Atty.-Gen. Olney will be shocked at the presumption of Atty.-Gen. Moloney in assailing a mighty corporation for getting outside of its charter. The philanthropic purpose of Sir Pullman in providing houses for renting by his employes, and the convenient gas and water arrangements of Pullman suburb, seem to have been lost sight of entirely by Gen. Moloney.

THOSE of us who have read of the intense interest taken in a base ball game by Senators Hill, Murphy and Smith and a man who looked like Gorman will never cease to regret that this pretty quartette did not devote their lives entirely to the noble game instead of going into politics.

THE praises of pie have been sounded wherever the stars and stripes float, but until now we have never realized its greatest virtue. A Pennsylvania man has found that the hot mince variety keeps him cool.

ROYAL LAETITA would not have been so much blamed for appearing in tights and bifurcated skirts on a bicycle, if she had not also loaded herself with a royal jag. She is as bad as a man.

WHEN we read that "more people attended the circus at Moberly than ever before," may we not infer that at least in Imperial Missouri the backbone of the hard times is yielding?

MR. CLEVELAND has two doubles. Can't these gentlemen be induced to go about with Mr. Thurber and thus draw any anarchistic fire that might be intended for the President.

NOW THAT stenography has been ascertained to be a "matrimonial bridge," it is to be apprehended that there may be a feminine rush that will break it down.

WHEN the other cities shall have adopted the St. Louis scheme of electric car mail delivery they will begin to understand what is meant by metropolitan facilities.

AS A domestic sample the commercial traveler just arrested for having a wife in Cedar Rapids, when he had one in Topeka, will hardly pass.

FROM the mutterings in Brazil we may almost hope to sell our South American brethren some more fire-arms in the near future.

THE bridal couple who blew out the gas at a Missouri hotel were little aware how quickly love's flame might be thus extinguished.

IT appears that American poets live to a good old age. The mortality among their readers, however, should be given.

THE ice man who wipes his feet before plunging into the kitchen will never suffer from heat in the next world.

BOSS FILLEY, though a high tariff orator, would never encourage the manufacture of silks.

The Path of Promotion.

From THE NEW YORK WORLD.

If THE WORLD were asked to advise a young man how to rise it would point to the case of Henry S. Priest of Missouri, as an example of what intelligence, industry and fidelity to the interest of an employer will do.

The young man who wishes to come to the front in any business must be honest, faithful, energetic, reliable, as Mr. Priest has been.

Over and above all this, if he wishes to become a Federal judge as expeditiously as possible he must enter the employment of a powerful railroad company, as Mr. Priest did.

In every capacity in which he has served the Gould system Mr. Priest has given entire satisfaction, and consequently his promotion through all the grades of the service to the Federal bench has been rapid.

Republics may be ungrateful, but well-managed railroad companies are not. The young man who wishes to achieve eminence in the public life of the United States must understand this if he is to succeed.

Water for Conductors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Apropos the hard times, and the efforts both rich and poor are making to economize, it will be interesting to note that even our great corporations are obliged to strain every nerve to make both ends meet.

An instance of this, and alas! a sorry one, was brought to my notice a short time ago while a passenger on the Compton Heights division of the Lindell Railway. It was one of the scorching afternoons we experienced last week, and I was standing on the rear platform exchanging casual remarks with the conductor, when suddenly he exclaimed: "I would give a day's wages for a glass of water!" The words came vehemently, and as I looked at the man he seemed totally exhausted by the great heat.

I said: "Surely the company provides ice water for the men." He then explained that the company had been prevailed upon to furnish about 5 cents' worth of ice each morning. This was placed in a water barrel at the western terminus of the line. The morning crew began work at 5 a. m. and quit at 3 p. m. The barrel was exposed all day to the sun's rays, so that when the afternoon crew came on at 3 o'clock, the ice had long since melted and the water was warm and sickening. The men were not allowed to leave the cars for any reason except at this terminus, so that all through the long hot afternoons and evenings, they suffered for a drink of cold water, which it was impossible for them to procure.

Now every good citizen knows the Lindell Railway Co. for as progressive and public spirited a body as a corporation can be. It is said that the company erected the Forest Park pavilion at a cost of $25,000; that it contributed $20,000 to the Park Lake Fund, and does it not seem that a little money might be expended by the "Lindell" for its employes' welfare?

Gentlemen, gentlemen, here is evidently an oversight. Let your friends and patrons, the great public, know that this niggardliness is not intentional, and that it will be rectified at once.

A PASSENGER.

The Locomotive Whistle Torture.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Mayor of East St. Louis, with an eye to the comfort of those living in that burg, has called the attention of the Chief of Police to the useless and unnecessary sounding of the steam whistles of locomotive engines at all hours of the night. This practice has become an absolute nuisance in St. Louis. At night, from 10 to 6, all engines on the railroad tracks between the [illegible] Depot and city limits seem to have [illegible] whistles going, for what purpose o[illegible] musement of the engine[illegible] firemen is not apparent [illegible] and a disturba[illegible] thousands [illegible] this noisy and unnecessary practice. St. Louis is the only city in the country which permits this nuisance. In the other cities, except in cases of great danger, the locomotive whistle is not sounded and never for switching, right of way, crossings or signals is it permitted.

CHESTNUT STREET.

Out of Date.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Zend Avesta, the Bible of Zoroaster, contains a sentiment which at the present time might be appropriately hung on the walls of the Merchants' Exchange. It reads: "There is no greater crime than to buy grain and keep it until it becomes dear."

OWEN HELD.

The Negro Found Responsible for John Conway's Death.

Deputy Coroner Albers held an inquest to-day on the remains of John Conway, the hod-carrier who died at the City Hospital on Saturday last from the effects of compression of the brain, the result of a blow received in a fight on Monday night last. Thos. Owen, the negro, who assaulted Owen, was held by the jury responsible for his death. The fight took place in front of 1009 Lucas avenue. Conway was 63 years old, married and lived at 1811 O'Fallon street.

Henry Hammon of 1402 North Eighth street dangerously stabbed Pierce Whalen of 1518 North Eighth street in a fight at Broadway and Cass avenue yesterday afternoon. Whalen was removed to the City Dispensary and thence to his home. Hammon was arrested last night.

WITH A REVOLVER.

James Coughlan Is Said to Have Beaten Horseshoer John Griffin.

John Griffin, a well-known horseshoer, who lives at 2118½ Chestnut street, while in the saloon of James Coughlan, 2300 Market street, last evening got into a dispute with the proprietor and during the argument Coughlan fired a shot which grazed the scalp of Griffin. Coughlan, it is said, also struck Griffin on the head with the butt end of his revolver, inflicting an injury which was dressed at a neighboring drugstore. Coughlan after the shooting jumped into his buggy and drove off. Griffin refused to prosecute.

PERU'S INSURGENTS.

Many Groups of Them, Who Demoralize Commerce.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A dispatch to the Times from Lima, Peru, says: "Small groups of insurgents are scattered all over the country and that there is a generally unsettled feeling. Commerce and agriculture therefore are much disturbed. It is added that the insurgents' greatest strength is in the North; but they appear to have no settled plans of campaign.

"Gen. Caceres, it is added, assumed the Presidency without any manifestation of hostile feelings against him. The new ministers assumed office yesterday. Public opinion is apathetic regarding the appointments."

MADE AN AFFIDAVIT.

Dr. Atkinson Answers Dr. Agate Friedman's Statement.

Dr. Robert Atkinson, ex-Secretary of the Board of Health, says that Dr. Agate Friedman's statement that a mistake was made in registering him properly is absurd. Dr. Friedman, who was indicted by the Grand-jury for perjury, claimed that he had never represented himself as a graduate of the University of Vienna, but had claimed to be a graduate of the University of Strassburg and the mistake of putting University of Vienna in his registration was one for which he should not be held responsible. In regard to this claim Dr. Atkinson says that its absurdity is at once shown when it is known the applicant for registration not only presents his diploma but goes before a notary and makes a sworn statement of his graduation. This Dr. Friedman did and his affidavit is now on file.

A SERIES OF SUITS.

The Troubles of the Building Companies of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Pullman company is not the only concern which is to be brought into court for alleged violation of the powers conferred upon it by the State of Illinois. The quo warranto proceeding against the company is only the beginning of a series of suits against interests, the aggregate importance of which equals that of the Pullman company so far as Chicago is concerned. These interests are the building companies of Chicago which have for ten years been engaged in erecting sky-scraping structures. They are to be made to show cause why they should not be punished for alleged violation of their charters, which in the cases of the majority provide for the building of a safety deposit vault or a structure devoted to the arts and sciences. The announcement that this is to be done is made by people close to the Attorney-General, and it is coupled with the statement that nine out of ten of the modern high office buildings in Chicago are erected in violation of the statute.

Religious News.

Rev. Mr. Fauntleroy, rector of St. James' (Episcopal) Church, devoted a considerable portion of his sermon yesterday morning to criticising Rev. Sam Jones, taking special exception to the latter's definition of a Christian. He strongly condemned Mr. Jones' views and methods.

Revs. H. C. Hart and R. S. Magann, the evangelists, took charge of the camp meeting at De Hodiamont yesterday. They will preach every afternoon and evening during the week and will have the assistance of many city clergymen.

Impressive services commemorative of the destruction of Jerusalem were held in all the orthodox Jewish synagogues yesterday. The day is known as Tish'a b'Abh and is marked in the Jewish calendar as "Sabbath 'Hazon."

The members of the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. John's Church began a spiritual retreat last evening under the direction of a Jesuit father. The young ladies and men of St. Kevin's Parish began a retreat last evening, which will last until Aug. 15. Fr. Shaw is conducting a retreat in St. Leo's Parish, which will close with the feast of the Assumption.

Rev. J. W. Lee lectured on "Jerusalem" to a large audience at St. John's Church last evening. Next Sunday his subject will be "The Church of the Holy Sepulchre" in Jerusalem.

International Rights Ignored.

QUEBEC, Aug. 13.—It will be well if no international complications follow the reported intention of the Canadian Government to make seizures of American ships now reported in the Mackenzie River. There are no less than seven of them there, where they passed the winter, and the report has been sent out from Ottawa that the fishermen have been setting the laws of international rights at defiance pretty freely.

Sawed Their Way to Freedom.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Aug. 13.—Five prisoners broke jail last night by sawing out a steel plate and breaking a hole through the wall. This is the second jail delivery in six months and Teddy Sullivan, one of those who escaped and who engineered this job, has figured in several other affairs of the same kind.

CRUSHED HIS SKULL.

John McMasters Killed Almost Instantly by an Emery Wheel Bursting.

John McMasters, 35 years old, employed at the Shickle, Harrison & Howard Iron Co., at Twelfth street and Chouteau avenue, was instantly killed at 7:15 o'clock this morning by the bursting of an emery wheel at which he was working. McMasters was a chipper and fitter, or polisher as it is sometimes called. An emery wheel corresponds to a grindstone. It revolves rapidly, and the operator holds against it articles of steel or iron, the wheel removing the rough surface. McMasters had been at work but a few minutes when the accident happened. The wheel burst into several pieces, one of which struck him on the forehead, crushing it in and causing death almost immediately. His fellow-workmen rushed to him when they saw him fall, but with a few heaves of the breast he expired. Officers McCormick and Manion, who were notified, promptly sent for the city undertaker's wagon, and the body was conveyed to the Morgue. McMasters was married and had five children. He lived with his family at 1416 St. Ange avenue.

BARRIOS CONFIDENT.

He Is Sure of Settling the England and Nicaragua Troubles.

NEW YORK, Aug 13.—Senor Modesta Barrios, Nicaraguan Minister to England, was a passenger in the Pacific Mail steamer City of Para, which arrived from Colon to-day. Senor Barrios had heard nothing from his country since July 29. When questioned as to his mission to England, he stated that he had full power to settle the Mosquito trouble between England and Nicaragua. He would endeavor to have the Managua treaty between his country and Great Britain modified, and was confident of success.

Names on the List of Irish Parliamentary Subscribers.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A letter published in the Times to-day points out that the names of the Clan-na-Gael are conspicuous on the list of subscribers to the Irish Parliamentary party, which Mr. Justin McCarthy has just made public, mentioning especially Mr. John M. Smyth, J. G. Thomas, A. Moran and Mr. W. J. Hynes, all of Chicago. The writer of the letter referred to says that all the persons mentioned are active participators in revolutionary schemes.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

Good Attendance at All the Resorts—"Rigolette" at Uhrig's To-Night.

Summer amusements were well patronized yesterday. The Union Trust Building Roof Garden concerts drew good crowds throughout the day and evening and excellent programmes were given. To-night many changes in the bill will be introduced and some bright novelties put on.

At Pope's Manager Hopkins' continuous show began its second week with the melodrama "The Black Flag" and an attractive vaudeville bill. A good week is expected.

"The Black Hussar" and the living pictures were the attraction at Uhrig's Cave last night. To-night "Rigolette" will be put on, together with a new series of the living pictures.

Terrace Park closed its season last night with a farewell performance of "Clover." There was a large audience present and a most satisfactory production was given. Manager Hagan is well satisfied with the results of his summer venture, and is making arrangements for next summer at the park on even a more elaborate scale.

Inquest on Mrs. Burch.

At the inquest over the remains of Mrs. Burch, who died at the City Hospital, Saturday, Deputy Coroner Rohlfing decided that her death was due to congestion of the lungs. Charles H. Burch, her husband, testified that when he sent her here from Chicago, two weeks ago, she was not under the influence of any drug. Both he and her brother-in-law, Le Mar Ayres, testified that she was addicted to the use of morphine and whisky.

FROM THE NOTE BOOKS.

Interesting Incidental Sketches of the Daily Work of Newsgathering.

A MORBID INTEREST—The recent hanging of two negroes in this vicinity has served to call attention to the morbid interest displayed by the general public in executions. The demand for tickets to witness an execution is always 100 per cent over the standing room capacity of the jail yard, and owners of the roofs overlooking the scaffold do a rushing business, accommodating eager spectators with choice seats. Queer sights are frequently witnessed around the scaffold. Many of the nervously inclined lookers-on faint or give way to their feelings in other ways when the trap is sprung. These sickening happenings make sensitive individuals think twice before attending more than one execution.

AN ENTOMOLOGIST.—For several days past myriads of small bugs have been hovering about the Eads bridge, swarming in thousands near the eastern approach and annoying persons crossing the river by darting into their faces. City Attorney Carroll of East St. Louis was struck in the eye by one of them, and it occurred to him that there might be some way to drive the pests from the bridge. He sought the advice of Capt. Mike Walsh, and after the matter had been discussed at some length he inquired:

"Mike, what kind of bugs do you suppose they are?"

"Well, Charley," I never could tell from your description, but as they appear to have come from the East I suppose they must be gold bugs."

HIS UNLUCKY NUMBER.—A singular coincidence in connection with the execution of the negro, Harry Duncan, is the fact that the name of the city where he was arrested, the town where he was hanged, the officer who captured him, the Judge who tried him and the Sheriff and his deputies who took him to the scaffold each contained seven letters. Seven may not have been Duncan's unlucky number, but there are a good many suspicious negroes who argue that it was.

A WATER POLICEMAN.—There is a colored water sprite in the lagoon about the Forest Park Music Pavilion, who is as amusing as he is efficient. He crouches in a cockle-shell canoe, with a bow at each end. He is armed with a single oar, with a paddle at each end. This he holds with both hands and dips first to larboard, then to starboard. This water policeman wears a sailor suit, and in his fragile craft he darts hither and thither, and now and then runs abeam of a skiff shouting, "No. 34, time's up boss!"

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

The roar of Niagara has been phonographed, and may be heard in any part of America for a small fee.

The distance of Mercury from the sun varies owing to the eccentricity of its orbit. When he is nearest to the sun he receives ten and one-half times more light and heat than we do, but when he removes to his greatest distance the light and heat are reduced by more than one half. Even then, however, the sun blazes in the skies of Mercury with a disc four and a half times larger than that which he shows to us on earth.

A scientist, discussing the canals of Mars, is disposed to accept the view that only the middle of the canals is water. The great width of the visible dark lines is probably due to a fringe of vegetation. Indeed, he suggests the possibility that one ravine may carry two rivers flowing in opposite directions.

Ball Lightning.

A case of ball lightning has been observed in the Oderberg Post-office, Prussia. During a violent thunder storm a telegraph post about 1,600 yards from the office was struck by lightning, and at this moment three clerks sitting round a table in the office saw, a few inches above the table, a ball of fire as large as a man's fist, of blinding brilliance, which immediately exploded with a loud crack, but did no damage. One observer said that the ball descended from the ceiling and rebounded from the table.

She Rested.

Lady Londonderry had a habit of taking idleness as a recuperating influence long before the "rest cure" was invented. Once every ten days, after her usual bath in the morning, she returned to bed and stayed there until evening. Then she put on a tea-gown, had her dinner served in her own apartment and rested on the sofa, reading a light novel until bedtime. No friend, however intimate, was admitted to see her during the day.

Cost in Human Life.

According to M. Eiffel, the cost in lives of any great engineering work can be estimated at least as accurately as the cost in money. "It has been ascertained," he says, "by statistical observation that in engineering enterprises one man is killed for every 1,000,000 francs spent on the work. If you have to build a bridge at a cost of 100,000,000 francs, you know that you will kill 100 workmen." This statement, while rather an ingenious one, is not, it is stated, borne out by facts. Take the Eiffel tower, for example. Six and a half millions worth cost only four lives. The Forth bridge, on the other hand, a contemporary points out, cost 45,000,000 francs, while the lives of fifty-five men were sacrificed in connection with its construction.

Hotel Telephone Service.

Now that telephones can be bought outright and used to good advantage in replacing the old call boy system in large hotels, there is no doubt of their ultimate adoption and very general use. The new Hotel Majestic, corner Seventy-second street and Central Park West, New York, will be entirely equipped with telephone service, and the National Telephone Co. of Boston has received an order for 500 sets or 1,000 instruments.

HE WILL DIE.

William Connor's Wounds Almost Certain to Prove Fatal.

Laparotomy Performed as the One Slight Hope of Saving Him.

THE BLOODY SHOOTING AFFRAY AT CARROLL'S ISLAND YESTERDAY.

Several Young Men From the City Went Down There to Fish, and Got Into a Row With Two Fishermen, Both of Whom Were Shot by George Meiers, One of the Crowd—Statements Made by Both Sides.

Bleeding from a dozen wounds and probably fatally wounded, Wm. Connor, one of the victims of the shooting which took place yesterday at Carroll's Island, lies at the City Hospital in a dying condition.

He has forty-two buckshots in his body, but only one of the small bullets made the probably fatal wound. It entered the abdomen and after traversing the peritonea cavity perforated the intestines.

Dr. Marks says the man has but one chance for his life. If he can stand the shock resulting from an operation of laparotomy he will get well, but Dr. Heine Marks explained to him that the probabilities were he would not rally from the exhaustion. It was the only thing that could possibly save him, however, and Connor did not hesitate a moment, but insisted on having the operation performed. The wounded man was lying on the operating table in the ampitheater at the hospital when he told his story of the shooting. He was suffering great pain and his words were intermingled with groans and gasps. He said that he realized that it was probably the last account he would be able to give of the trouble, which will probably cost him his life, and requested that his statement be reported accurately. Here is what he said:

CONNORS' STATEMENT.

"They killed my partner and shot me for no cause whatever. I am a fisherman, 36 years of age, and I was born at Res Rattoon, N. M. I have lived on or near Carroll's Island several years. The fellows who came to the island yesterday had a keg of beer. They cursed and swore and we told them to stay away from our boats. Then they began to use abusive language. One of the men leveled his shotgun at me. I felt something strike me and I fell to the ground. Then when I saw the smoke and heard the noise of the gun, I knew he had shot me. I do not know how many times he shot at me, but I think that he discharged both barrels of the gun at the same time. They told me when I left the island that my partner was dead.

"There was no chance to get my wounds dressed down there, so I crawled to my boat and rowed to Carondelet. Nothing but the knowledge that my life depended upon my exertions made me able to do it. My clothes were soaked with blood when I got to Davis street."

Here the physicians announced that they were ready to perform the operation, and chloroform was administered. Before he was completely under the influence of the anæsthetic Connor imagined that he had taken part in a war.

"There were 200 men in our boat," he screamed, "and they killed them all."

It is believed that Connor was out of his head when he made the above statement, as John Connor, to whom he alludes as his partner, states that Connor is his brother and he made no mention of this fact. John Connor also states that his brother did not row up to the city from Carroll's Island, as claimed by him, but was brought up in a skiff by the other fishermen.

THE FISHING TRIP.

George Meiers, in company with his two brothers, David, aged 18; Edward, aged 12; Augustus Kleb of 2712 Chippewa street, Jacob Schier of 8721 South Jefferson avenue, Charles Volks of 3729 Chippewa street and William Meyers of 3749 Oregon avenue, started out early yesterday morning on a fishing tour. On reaching Carroll's Island, which is about six miles below Carondelet, they decided to tie up for the day. They had a keg of beer and forthwith proceeded to enjoy themselves.

About 200 feet below where their skiff was, William and John Connors, fishermen by trade, had their flatboat fastened, and in between was the boat of William Corslett, another fishermen. The boys were quite inclined to be friendly and offered both Corslett and the Connor boys some of their beer. They at first declined, but about 3 o'clock John Connors went up to the boys' camp and drank one glass. He noticed a shotgun leaning against a tree and spoke about it. Nothing was thought of this at the time, but it resulted in very serious trouble. Connors returned to his boats, some of the boys went in swimming and others went to sleep.

About 4 o'clock, upon coming out of the water, they discovered that the shotgun was missing. John Connor was immediately suspected and the whole crowd, with the exception of George Meiers, started to investigate. There was another shotgun left and one of the boys carried this along. They were in an angry mood, the beer having begun to get in its work.

THE SHOOTING.

The first man they met was William Connor. He was in the river, fixing his nets.

"Where's your brother?" they asked him.

"He's in the boat," was the reply.

"Well," said one with an oath, "he stole our gun," and they went on to get hold of him.

Arrived, at the boat, they called John Connor and accused him of the theft of the gun. He denied it and hot words followed. During the quarrel George Meiers came up. Taking the gun from the boy who was carrying it, he raised it to his shoulder. Connor started to run for the boat to get weapons, but just then Meiers let go. He declares that he only shot in the river to frighten Connor, but the latter claims that he fired right at him. Four bullets in his face go to corroborate this statement.

At any rate Connor got inside the boat and grabbed his shotgun and revolver. The boys declared they all made for the thicket as soon as he got inside his boat, but Connor says they fired two more shots at him as he passed the two windows in the boat. When Connors came out he began firing. He emptied both barrels of the shotgun and then turned his revolver loose, but the blood from his wounds so blinded his eyes that he could not see.

His assailants then turned their attention to the brother, William, who by this time had got out on to the bank of the river. From the shelter of the thicket Meiers deliberately took aim at him and he fell with his face, breast and stomach filled with shot. As an excuse for this action the boys declare that William was also using his revolver; but this is denied by the other side.

As soon as the shooting was over the young men became frightened and took to their skiff. Joseph and Henry Unselbach, Joseph Hartmen and John Watkins, also fishermen, had heard shots, and as soon as they realized what had happened jumped into a boat and started in pursuit.

AN EXCITING CHASE.

It was an exciting race for miles. The pursued were strong and good oarsmen, and the fear of the guns in the fishermen's boats lent energy to their strokes, but their boat was weighted down, so Ed Meyers, Kleb, Volk and Schier made a landing and struck off up the Missouri Pacific tracks while the other three kept up the [illegible].

The pursuers stopped long enough at the tracks to telephone Capt. Young to waylay the fleeing men, so that when they reached Carondelet Detective Mulligan was ready with a boat to head them off. The rowers saw the jig was up an' came ashore, giving themselves up peaceably. Watkins, who had followed the men who landed, turned them over to Officer Foerstel as soon as the city limits were reached. All of them were locked up.

William Connors, who was badly wounded, was removed to his boat, but at night his condition became so serious that he was put in a skiff and rowed to Carondelet, where an ambulance met him and conveyed him to the City Hospital. John Connors' wounds do not amount to much.

None of the prisoners seemed much cast down by their predicament. Meiers especially did not seem to realize the grave position he is in. He is a rather nice-looking young fellow and works in the West-Jump Shoe Factory.

"Why did you shoot that man?" he was asked.

"Well," said he in reply, "they stole the gun. But then I would not have shot either of them if they had not shot at us. I only fired into the river the first time to frighten him. Then they both opened on us with guns and revolvers. If we'd had more guns there'd have been a couple of dead people down there, sure."

CORSLETT'S ACCOUNT.

Wm. Corslett was an eye-witness to the whole transaction.

"Wm. Connors," he said, "was in the river fixing his nets when the boys came by. They asked him about his brother. He said he was in the boat and they went on by. They demanded the gun of John and then commenced shooting. Their gun was a double-barrel breech-loader and they fired three shots at John very rapidly. After doing this they ran up the bank and shot Will. He had no weapons on him at all, and was merely standing on the bank."

John Connor denies that he stole the gun. The Connors earn their living by fishing. This summer they have floated all the way down the river from Sioux City, Io., stopping at different points until luck becomes bad when they move on. William is 38 and John 55 years of age.

It is probable that all the boys except George Meiers will be released, as it is doubtful if they can be convicted of being accessories. Meiers is now locked up at the Four Courts pending the result of Conner's injuries. The others are at the First District Station.

The Sparks Bros., with R. M. Foster as attorney, commenced replevin proceedings in the Circuit Court to-day against E. Frank Ward, Ferdinand Murphy and John Amend, composing the firm of Murphy & Amend, to obtain possession of the race horses Ether, Mamie B., Don Ensign, Lillie Trumble and Cocaine, alleged to be in the illegal possession of the defendants. The horses have been running at the South Side track, and, it is alleged, were placed in defendants' possession for temporary purposes and converted by them to their own use. An order of delivery was issued.

LOOKING FOR QUARTERS.

Dan Creedon Will Train Near Forest Park for His Coming Fight.

Dan Creedon, the Australian middleweight, who will meet Bob Fitzsimmons in New Orleans next month, is now a resident of this city and will train here for his coming battle. Accompanied by Tom Tracey, Creedon made a tour of the Forest Park district this morning with a view of securing suitable training quarters. He wants to be located near the park, so as to have the advantage of its fresh air and nice roads in his daily spins. Creedon has already commenced light training at Mike Mooney's gymnasium. Tom Tracey, the Australian welterweight fighter, will have charge of Creedon when he gets down to hard work. Numerous applications from volunteers to assist in the training have been received.

Their Story Did Not Go.

Jerry Savage and William Yule were fined $10 each by Judge Morris to-day for "rushing the can." They were arrested yesterday by Officers Dickerson ann Phillips in the vicinity of Fourteenth and Gratiot streets. During the trial to-day the defendants caused quite a ripple of laughter in court by trying to prove that when they were arrested they had a can of ice-water in their possession and were trying to resuscitate a friend who was overcome by the heat. Judge Morris thought differently, however.

Tale of Marital Woe.

Albert Luchem of 1034 Geyer avenue went to the Four Courts this morning and appealed to Assistant Circuit Attorney McDonald for advice about his matrimonial difficulties. He said that his wife left him two weeks ago, taking their two children and went to live with her mother. Yesterday she went back to the house and carted away all the furniture while he was out. He was referred to a justice of the peace.

May Die of a Dog Bite.

Seven-year-old Tommy Rooney of 1829 Graham avenue was bitten by a dog last Thursday, but as it only seemed a scratch his parents neglected to have it attended to. Last night the arm began to swell badly and serious results are now feared.

Fined for Cruelty to a Horse.

James Sells of 6440 Marmaduke avenue was fined $20 by Judge Morris to-day on the charge of cruelty to animals. On July 30 last it is alleged that Sells was trying to make his horse move faster, and took a birch stick and struck the animal several blows on the ribs and hips. The horse dropped dead. An appeal from Judge Morris' decision was taken.

OUT FOR TROUBLE.

Collisions Expected at the Republican Primaries.

IF THREATS ARE CARRIED OUT THERE WILL BE MANY SCRAPS.

Henry Besch Threatens to Smash Dan Siegmund—A Ruling of Recorder Higgins—Wards Where the Bitterest Feeling Exists.

The Republican primary election for the selection of delegates to the State Convention at Excelsior Springs began at 1 p. m., and the polls will remain open until 8 this evening. The interest within the party has perhaps not been exceeded since the Slattery-Butler-Sampson canvass of 1889, and in many of the wards the feeling of antagonism between the factions indicates fighting. Recorder of Voters Higgins gave out the ballot-boxes and poll-books and qualified the judges and clerks this forenoon, beginning with the outside wards and taking those in the center of the city at the very last.

Mr. Higgins refused to give any outsiders tickets of admission to the poles, a decision that provoked a great deal of grumbling, but Mr. Higgins refused to make any exceptions to the rule. He stated that the law provides that "one representative of each political party" shall have the privilege of watching the count, and held that this language should be construed as referring only to general elections, in which two parties are interested, and not to party primaries. He would have been willing, he said, to have issued tickets to one representative of each faction in each polling place, if concerted action had been taken to that end; but he did not purpose to give out tickets here and there and have a raid on his office for further privileges of the same kind at a late hour.

While there was no quarreling about the City Hall, the leaders of the rival factions flocked very much by themselves, and a few throats were heard of "scrapping" when the opposing delegations met face to face in the wards. In the Eleventh Ward, Mr. Henry Besch, the Central Committeeman, has ordered a lunch at the Cherokee Garden, where one of the polling places is located, and he threatened to "smash" Dan Siegmund, leader of one of the opposition delegates, and a judge at the Cherokee Garden poll, if the latter did not carry himself very straight. When Mr. Siegmund was apprised of the threat, he said that if "smashing" was to be the order, his friends would probably participate.

WHERE TROUBLE IS EXPECTED.

Other wards in which trouble between rival factions may reasonably be anticipated are the First, Second, Sixth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and possibly the Fifteenth, where the negroes are bolting the regular ticket almost in a body, and rallying round the Spelbrink ticket, the candidate for Central Committeeman, in which is Bernard Belker. In other wards, such as the Sixteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eight, the feeling is very bitter, but there are no threats of resort to physical violence. In the Second Ward the "Indians" are expected to be out in full force, and the regulars, supporters of 'Squire Boehm say they will carry the contest to the convention if they are out-voted.

In the Sixteenth Ward the movement started by a few Democrats to help out the Young Men's Club opposition is said to have been killed by order of the men chiefly instrumental in starting it. In the Nineteenth Ward, the regulars and opposition both claim that importations will be resorted to, and that numerous arrests will follow if such is the case. The charges and counter-charges of the respective factions vary in language, but are to the same effect, namely, that each expects the others to win with Democratic votes, if at all.

Charges have been made that the Kerens faction intends to resort to something of the kind in the Twenty-eighth Ward, but if plans of that kind are on foot they have not yet assumed formidable proportions. Out there William Ivy, candidate of the Kerens faction for Central Committeeman, is out with a circular declaring that the meeting at Delmar and Taylor avenues on July 20, at which the regular or Weinbrenner ticket was put up, was "packed with Indians, smooth workers from Foerstelville, from the Twenty-seventh Ward." The supporters of Weinbrenner authorize the statement that Mr. William Ivy presided at that meeting, and by the rules of the party organization was bound to support it.

In the Thirteenth Ward the contest between Dr. Starkoff and L. J. W. Wall has assumed important dimensions. In one of the morning papers a statement was printed that the Lithographers' Union last night passed resolutions indorsing Wall. M. Lang of the Lithographers, who made a strong speech against Wall at Carondelet Turner Hall on Saturday night, declares that there was no meeting of the Lithographers' Union last night, and that therefore no such resolutions could have been passed.

Circulars have been issued in a number of wards in behalf of various factions, and some of these embody serious charges. It is predicted that the party in St. Louis will have a hard time to restore harmony in time to make an effective fight against the common enemy in the city campaign.

HEAVY VOTE LOOKED FOR.

The vote to-day will be very heavy in all the wards where contests are on, and the result will not be known before midnight. In the Eleventh and Thirteenth, for instance, it is predicted that 2,000 votes each will be polled, a sufficient number to fill up every hour of the voting time, giving the judges no time for casting up. In the Eighteenth, Fifteenth and Second the poll will also be very heavy. Recorder Higgins says that he will "hustle them up" as soon as they have had a reasonable time in which to count and get to the City Hall, and he hopes to close his office by midnight.

Death of Mr. T. E. Scully.

Mr. Timothy E. Scully, the Assessor and Collector of Water Rates, died at his home, 3415 Belle avenue, at 11 o'clock last night after a protracted illness. Mr. Scully was but 30 years of age and unmarried. He was appointed to the position he held at the time of his death by Mayor Noonan and had served for nearly four years. He was born in St. Louis and educated at the Christian Brothers' College. He served as a deputy under Sheriff Harrington and was rewarded by Mayor Noonan for his active work in the campaign in which Noonan was elected Mayor with the position of Assessor of Water Rates. Under Mr. Scully's administration the affairs of the Water Rates office are acknowledged to have been conducted second to no department in the city government. Mr. Scully was very popular and his untimely death will be mourned by a host of friends.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at 9:30 o'clock from the Rock Church. The pall-bearers have been selected from among the employes of the Water Department. The Water Department will be closed for half a day out of respect to the deceased collector.

TWO THEORISTS.

When Mme. de Stael declared, in the generalizing method peculiar to the feminine mind, that to know everything was to forgive everything, she swept condemnation and, to a large extent, criticism out of her horizon, and made the love-lighted outlook of charity limitless.

To certain rigid natures the Frenchwoman's epitome of the Christian creed bears no appeal, and to the honorable soul of one, John Thorpe, it would, if presented to him, have appeared as valueless as that valuable equipment in the making of personal history—an unbounded ambition. Unexpected heir to a distant relative's fortune—a relative of whom ugly facts had come to light as to dishonorable speculations—John Thorpe refused to benefit by the will. Old Anthony Thorpe, who, in the amassing of his fortune, had given his conscience such liberal license, would have smiled sardonically had he known the powers of the inward monitor in his heir's Quixotic soul.

When questioned as to his career, Thorpe said he preferred to live on his wits. These commodities were not such as might be termed brilliant in the brain of this devotee to his own particular view of a right theory, and his friends predicted sackcloth for apparel and ashes for fires of coal.

Some years after the termination of John Thorpe's college career his father had heavy losses and shortly afterward died, when the allowance which had made the son independent and enabled him to follow his amateurish taste in art melted into thin air.

Within a month or two from the date of these adversities Thorpe found himself acknowledged heir of old Anthony. Fate had indeed flaunted her fickleness in the face of the faithful, but she was in a measure defied when this John-o'-Dreams, with little care for the pinchings of poverty, took up his abode in a garret, with his paint-box, his easel and his dog.

Thorpe's appearance, his length and lankiness of stature, had an oddity almost fantastic, which was also not without a certain distinction. He resembled a Vandyke portrait, supposing that painter of style to have surveyed his sitter through the medium of a convex mirror, thereby exaggerating at every point his leanness and lengthiness. The long oval of the thin, refined face might have been accused of femininity but for the line of the firm-lipped mouth and the reserve of the kindly eyes. These were virile enough.

The singularity of Thorpe's appearance had its own fascination for at least two of his friends. Their gaze of untiring admiration was as fervent as that which might have shone in the eyes of the ancients when they worshiped the beauty of a Greek god.

These two love-blinded beings were no other than a shaggy terrier, known by the unbaptized name of Toddles, and a sick child, who lived under the same roof, and was at the mercy of the same shiftless landlady.

"Toddles," said Thorpe one day (the dog was lying with ears cocked, listening for the landlady's foot on the stairs with the approaching meal), "if I were a little more gifted and you were a little less hungry, there would be more money between us, my friend."

Toddles was unabashed by this slur on his gastronomic powers; he even cheerfully assented by wagging his tail, which in his recumbent position made a flopping sound on the bare floor.

In a few moments the door opened and the landlady's head thrust itself forward.

"Please, sir, Mattie Smith's dying!"

"All right," said John Thorpe, quietly, without, however, removing the pipe from his mouth or his eyes from the mixing of flake white on the palette; "I'll come."

His apparent callousness was due to his landlady's peculiarity. He had discovered long since that "a passionate prodigality of expression" was her usual method of speech.

He found the child much exhausted with a violent fit of coughing, but she was able to turn upon him a dim little smile, followed by the shadow of a nod, as awkwardly enough he poured her some medicine from a big labeled bottle, which, with an old jar filled with daffodils, shared the uneven surface of the very rickety table in the center of the very small room.

Thorpe remained a moment gazing at the flowers, his hands in his pockets, his head bent.

He seemed to form an inference from their presence there, for he presently said:

"So lady Mary has been here to-day, I see. What time was she here? Never mind, don't speak," he added, quickly, as the child endeavored to frame a word, and thereby commenced coughing.

Lady Mary was one of the many daughters of an Irish earl. Distraught by her daily readings of the sufferings of the poor, she determined to see on her own account what could be done, and her seeing ended in a large amount of doing.

In arranging some little matters of comfort for Mattie, when the child first came under her notice, she found it necessary to consult Mr. Thorpe.

During the interview a look of keen inquiry shone in the blue gray depths of Lady Mary's Irish eyes, and more than once the dark flashes fell and veiled their perplexity, for her quick sense told her the unmistakable gentleman was there, through all the disguise of shabby clothes and so poor a dwelling.

As for Mattie, his name was always on her lips.

It was in the child's room Lady Mary from time to time encountered him. He and Toddles had long had the habit of betaking themselves there, and making for Mattie her happiest hour in the day.

Lady Mary's racy manner gradually thawed the reserve of her new acquaintance.

To talk intimately, even with those few old friends who valued his personality among their dearest possessions, was rare with Thorpe, but this new friend, with the charm of her womanly tact, gradually drew from him the story of his life, made up for the most part of the sadness of negative, of the things he had not done, of the career he had not made, of the happiness which, for conscience sake, he had not found.

One day, after a visit of Lady Mary's, Mattie announced a piece of news. "I am going," said she, her eyes shining and the bright blush coming into her cheek, "to the seaside. Lady Mary says she will take me. What are waves like, Mr. Thorpe, and will there be big fishes and real boats?"

Thorpe walked to the window and looked out over the chimney-pots, where a cat prowled in the smut-blackened air. The sordidness of the view was, however, just then not uppermost in his mental vision. He turned round with a sigh.

"Ah!" he said, "it's grand for you, little girl, but it's sad for us, eh, Toddles?"

The dog jumped down from his post on the child's bed where he had been lying, looking absolutely ugly as he blinked away at the bead eyes of Mattie's rag doll. He then proceeded to set up a howl of impatience for his supper, thereby compelling his master to accompany him back to their own almost barer apartment.

Among Lady Mary's charitable undertakings was now included the desire to convert John Thorpe's irrational logic into that which she was pleased to term rational sense. She informed him that his attitude with regard to old Anthony's money was of an inconsistency quite unique; that to bear out his theory he ought to refuse to wear clothes or to eat food unless he knew the people who supplied him to be gaining their livelihood by honest means.

She smiled with a certain derision at his favorite formula, "Equality, fraternity and liberty," though she hastened to explain she was on the side of "fraternity and liberty," but "equality" was surely contrary to the laws of God, for in the fitting out of the temperaments and talents of humanity could anything be more unequal than Nature herself?

Lady Mary was conscious of thinking as she made this statement how poorly equipped in temperament and talents for the battle of life was this eccentric new friend, whom she occasionally dared to deride. At a later date in their friendship she, with a woman's privilege, changed her mind, and if she surrounded the sterling worth of John Thorpe with the halo almost of heroism, was she not amply atoning for her former defection, even though, woman-like, she weighed down the favoring balance too heavily?

Thorpe's Mentor, unavailing though she feared were the attacks on his theories, was unconsciously the cause of an undermining process.

The week after Mattie had been whisked off to sea breezes a tall, lanky figure, followed by the shaggiest of terriers, might have been seen sauntering along the queer little sea wall of Appelby-on-Sands. Thorpe's keen eye soon discovered Lady Mary in spite of her secluded corner and the shelter of a large sunshade, which she tilted a little backward at the sound of approaching footsteps, thereby throwing into delightful contrast against its rose-colored lining the dark mass of hair under the dainty hat. A spectator near watched her stroll on a few yards with her tall companion, when they both suddenly stopped with the air of people whose attention is deeply arrested.

Were they on the brink of some momentous decision, or were they merely listening to a lark just risen and pouring down over them a very rain of song? The morning was glorious. A high tide was rolling in in densities of blue, the perfect color broken here and there, far out as eye could see, by the foam-white crescents of the waves. Two boats of the little fishing fleet were scudding merrily into harbor, the tawny-brown of the sails weather-stained into patches of deep orange and dull red.

The before mentioned lark, aware he was a lark and not a spirit (his little wings felt at length a sensation of fatigue), suddenly stopped his triumphant ascension heavenward and fluttered rapidly down to his nest. At this moment Toddles, who had caught sight of his master, came bounding up in wild excitement, loyally leaving the teasing of Mattie and the disporting of himself in deserted bathing-machines. The sea air had much invigorated his system, but his state of joy was just then hardly opportune. Toddles' dog nature, however, remained blissfully unaware of the critical moment. He seized a corner of Lady Mary's dress and waltzed around, immediately diverted by the sight of her long-handled parasol, at which he made a dive, with the amiable desire of carrying for her an object as long again as himself. Lady Mary snatched him up in her arms and walked away from her companions. There was more color in her face than the wind had brought there, and the aforesaid spectator wondered if it signified temper (she would be a charming enemy); if so was it the dog or the gentleman?

But presently the latter came up and after a few moments they walked apparently by common consent, disappearing at length mere specks in the distance over the breezy downs.

That was a very long walk for Toddles. [illegible] once he wished he had never gone. He was accustomed to attention. He received none whatever.

When Lady Mary became the wife of Jo Thorpe, old Anthony, if he were allowed [illegible] know, in that hot place where his heir [illegible] one time believed him to be residing, m[illegible] have felt a sensation of soothing [illegible] for the use of his fortune in Lady Mary's hands was sufficient to justify the revenge [illegible] a ten-fold sense.—[illegible]

Gov. Francis Said to Be Watching the New Bridge Bill.

SHOULD IT PASS CONGRESS HE MAY ASK A VETO.

It Is Alleged This Was One Object of His Mission to Washington—President Boyd of the Exchange Says Francis Does Not Want Another Pier Bridge—It Would Interfere With Navigation—What Other Members Think.

Ex-Gov. D. R. Francis, who was supposed to have gone to Washington solely in the interest of candidates for judicial honors, has returned to St. Louis. The nominations of Judges Thayer and Priest have been confirmed, but the man who swings the Administration forces in Missouri still lingers in the neighborhood of the White House. It is remarked that he had a double mission to Washington, the defeat of the East St. Louis bridge bill and the appointment of Judges Thayer and Priest.

The name of ex-Gov. Francis is third on the list of members of the Mississippi River Committee of the Merchants' Exchange, at whose request President Wm. G. Boyd wrote to Representative Cobb and Senator Cullom. The committee comprises the following: Isaac M. Mason, President of the Anchor Line Co.; Henry C. Haarstick, President of the St. Louis and Mississippi Valley Transportation Co.; D. R. Francis; Marcus Bernheimer, Vice-President of the Scharff-Bernheimer Grocer Co.; David Block of Block, Dean & Co., commission merchants; J. S. Rowse of the St. Louis Trust Co., Frank Gaiennie of the Exposition Association, Alex. H. Smith, coal dealer; T. T. Lewis, Secretary of the Meramec Iron Mining Co.; Jerome Hill of the Cummings Hill Cotton Co., and Web M. Samuel, President of the St. Louis United Elevator Co.

While Representative Cobb and Senator Cullom have been called upon to oppose the bill in the House and Senate respectively, it is intimated that the committee hope to reach the President, as a last resort, through Gov. Francis.

PRESIDENT BOYD'S VIEWS.

President William G. Boyd of the Merchants' Exchange was asked to-day if it was true that Gov. Francis was fighting the East St. Louis bridge.

"Not that I am aware of," replied he. "I have heard him say he could not see how any one could advocate erecting another pier bridge between the Eads and Merchants' bridges. I am inclined to believe he would favor a suspension bridge.

"The exchange is not opposing any bridge scheme which will not impede navigation, and the contemplated East St. Louis pier bridge would certainly do that. As far as the exchange is concerned the more the better if navigation is unimpeded. I think all the merchants feel that way."

President Boyd was asked if the Merchants' Terminal interests had not enlisted the support of Gov. Francis in opposition to the proposed bridge.

"I have not heard of it," he said. "Of course, Mr. Francis was one of the promoters of the Merchants' Bridge and I suppose he now holds stock in it. Still I have not heard of opposition coming from those interested in the existing bridges."

WHAT OTHERS THINK.

Mr. Web M. Samuel could not remember whether Gov. Francis took part in the committee's action in the matter. He believed Gov. Francis was opposed to a pier bridge at the proposed point.

Mr. Mason did not think the river interests had allied themselves with the Merchants' and Eads bridge in their opposition to the proposed bridge. As fas as he was concerned, he said, he had no objection to a suspension bridge. He knew nothing of Gov. Francis' alleged activity in the matter.

By private wire to Gaylord, Blessing & Co.:

NEW YORK.—The halt in the market was credited to tariff uncertainty. Active bulls said they would rather wait a few days and see the outcome at Washington than to move prices up with the possibility of a break in Sugar interfering with their plans. Bears thought it would be a short rise anyway, but they were cautious sellers, arguing there would not be clear sailing until the tariff was out of the way, when crop conditions would become a vital factor. There are indications that the market may be more than usually irregular. It is predicted that St. Paul may cross C., B. & Q., that Southern stocks may go up and Grangers down, and that stocks not dependent on crop conditions, like Western Union, Manhattan and industrials, may have independent moves. Traders thought there was realizing in L. & N. and in Sugar, but continued absorption of Richmond Terminal and Lead.

New York—The topic in financial circles was a rumor of the enforced resignation of Reinhart from the presidency of the Atchison. Even the friends of Reinhart felt impelled to confess the weakness of his defense.

The New York Financial Chronicle estimates the gain of banks from the interior at $1,286,000, and the loss through the Sub-Treasury and gold exports at $3,050,000, a net loss of $1,764,000. For the fourth week of July sixty-five roads show a decrease in gross earnings of 9 per cent, while the decrease last year was 8.15 per cent.

Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13, 10:15 a. m.—Share speculation was in good tone at the opening and fairly active. St. Paul was bought in round blocks and rose 1 per cent, a moderate amount being taken by London. Louisville & Nashville sold up 1⅛, Burlington & Quincy, Wabash preferred and St. Louis Southwestern, ⅛; Ontario & Western, ⅜; Chicago Gas, General Electric, Missouri Pacific, Lake Shore, Canada Southern and Northern Pacific, ⅛ each, and Erie ⅛. Sugar rose ⅜ and declined ⅛ per cent. The market is strong.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13, 11 a. m.—The market has continued strong and further advances have been recorded on purchases induced by the prospect of a near solution of the tariff question and better crop reports. A bull pool in Distilling sent up the price of that stock 1¾; Tobacco, 1¼; Richmond Terminal preferred, 1½ to 22; D. & R. G. 1⅛ to 31¼; St. Paul & Duluth, 2 per cent; Northwest, ⅜; United States Cordage, ⅜; C. & O. ¼, and other shares a smaller fraction. Sugar advanced ⅛, but reacted 1 per cent to 105⅝. Distilling has reacted ⅜. The market generally is strong.

Noon—The greater portion of the list dealt in has made an appreciation in values, Distilling leading the upward movement with a gain of 1⅞ per cent, the buying in this stock being based on the Senate schedule. Western Union has advanced 1 per cent, Sugar, Norfolk & Western and Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis ⅜; Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Burlington and Rock Island ⅜, St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Lead and Cotton Oil ¼. Cotton Oil preferred 1, and other shares a smaller fraction with some exceptions. Chicago Gas receded ⅜ and rallied ⅛; General Electric fell off ⅜ and rose ⅛; Pullman declined ⅜ and moved up 1 per cent. Lead preferred has declined ⅛, National Linseed ⅛ and D and H ⅛ per cent. Norfolk and Western preferred has jumped 3⅜ per cent. At midday the market was active and buoyant. Distilling is up 2⅞ from Saturday; tobacco 1⅜; Richmond Terminal preferred 1½; St. Paul, Burlington and Missouri Pacific 1⅛; L & N 1⅛, and Western Union and United States cordage 1 per cent.

Despite the Illinois Attorney-General's announcement of proposed institution of quo warranto proceedings against the Pullman company, the stock of the corporation is ½ per cent higher than at the close Saturday. Sales to noon were 95,500, including 76,100 listed and 19,900 unlisted.

Heavy Rains in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Io., Aug. 13.—The heaviest rain for three months began last night, continuing until 9 o'clock this morning. Indications are for more rain this afternoon. The rain was accompanied by vivid lightning and heavy thunder. Several buildings were struck.

THE MARKETS.

India will have but little wheat to spare for export this year unless at the expense of reserve from previous crops.

Secretary Sage of the Iowa Agricultural Bureau says he doubts if the rain did much good to corn in that State, as it came too late.

The weekly Indiana report, to be out to-day, it is said, will show a very discouraging crop situation. Late rains were heavy, but only did good in a few localities.

A cable from St. Petersburg says the official report dated July 15 shows a highly satisfactory yield in Russia of summer and winter wheat. The first threshing indicates a yield 50 per cent above the average.

There was a decrease last week of 1,792,000 bu in the amount of wheat and flour afloat for Europe, making it 81,824,000 bu, where it was 84,120,000 bu one year ago. Corn afloat decreased 589,000 bu. and is now 4,467,000 bu, against 9,111,000 bu one year ago.

From recent indications France will not have to buy much corn this year. A letter to a prominent exporter says: "We shall buy for feeding purposes only, it being impossible to distill corn at present prices of alcohol and the largest manufacturers have decided to stop work."

Lincoln, Neb.—The corn crop situation is growing worse. I don't think Nebraska will raise corn enough to feed the chickens of the State. Rain will do very little good now, as it is too late. Cheap wheat is the only thing left to keep our animals living till we get another crop.

The Minneapolis Journal has raised its estimate on the spring wheat crop, and now declares the three principal States will harvest 125,000,000 bu, that paper placing the crop of Minnesota and North Dakota in excess of 100,000,000 bu, and Iowa to be 105,000,000 bu, leaving 20,000,000 bu for South Dakota. The Journal ridicules the Government estimate, which it claims is very erroneous, as "the report includes the estimate of hundreds who are incompetent, hundreds who are prejudiced and a few who are reliable."

The Manufacturers' Record, in its weekly review of the business situation South, says: Taken as a whole, the Southern crops will be larger this year than ever before. Of corn, all reports say the crop is unprecedented; the outlook for cotton, based on acreage and present condition, indicates a crop of from 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 bales; the smaller crops have nearly all done well, thus giving the South the full measure of abundant crops of all kinds.

Says a New York publication: Feeding wheat as a substitute for corn, in the present relation of values between wheat and corn, may easily become an important factor in deciding the level of grain prices for the rest of the season, not only in this country but in the markets of the world. The corn crop of 1893 reached 1,600,000,000 bu, out of which were exported 68,426,000 bu. The crop of 1892 was also 1,600,000,000 bu, and in that year we exported 44,880,000 bu. The big corn crop of 1891, about 2,000,000,000 bu, left a reserve which it is believed has since been practically absorbed. The short corn crop of this year may therefore necessitate the substitution of wheat for corn for feeding purposes to a very large extent. At this stage of the season, however, conjectures along this line are liable to be completely upset by the harvest returns and the proportion of wheat to be used for feeding purposes can only be the merest guesswork. Advices from the West indicate that large quantities of wheat are now being absorbed that way.

Letters received this morning from Southwest Iowa report cloudy weather, but no rains, and too late for rains now to save the corn crop. Farmers are buying all the wheat they can for feed, wheat selling by the 1,000-bu lot at 50@55c, where old corn brings 55@60c.

The Secretary of the Kansas Agricultural Department is said to have stated that damage to the corn crop of that State has been greatly exaggerated.

How doth the little busy bear improve each shining minute, by selling wheat and corn and such, the poor bull isn't in it.—[A wail from W. D. Judd.

The Barge Line expects to send out one tow this week and then quit. Low water and dull business is the reason for laying up.

The visible supply of wheat is now 62,321,000 bu, an increase over last week of 2,320,000 bu, where it decreased one year ago 555,000 bu to a total of 58,869,000 bu. Corn decreased 574,000 bu last week and is now 3,184,000 bu, against 6,214,000 bu last year, and oats increased 1,256,000 bu and is 2,854,000 bu against 1,928,000 bu one year ago.

India shipped 440,000 bu wheat last week, a decrease of 180,000 bu from week before, and 80,000 bu larger than year ago. Since April 1 Indian shipments were 6,088,000 bu, against 11,560,000 for same time last year, and 20,882,000 two years ago.

ON 'CHANGE.

Grain.

Wheat—The market opened weak and declined, as there were too many sellers and not enough buyers, and most of the selling was for longs. A decline of about 1¼c was recorded ere signs of strength were seen and it took some time to steady prices. When the market did get turned it mounted steadily upward until ⅞c for Sept and ¼c for Dec above the bottom, and at close was ⅛@¼c and ⅛@¼c respectively below Saturday. The break in corn, the lower cables, the decline in Chicago, where receipts overran estimates, and the larger receipts more than had been looked for, all tended to bring out sellers and stand off buyers and the opening saw a break and lower market. A Russian estimate that wheat was threshing out 50 per cent above an average, also had a bearish effect, as did the prospects for a large increase in the visible, and the decrease of nearly 1,800,000 bu in "ocean wheat" had no show at all. Clearances from four ports were moderate—28,000 pkgs flour and 236,500 bu wheat—and the visible increase over 2,300,000 bu, but a report that the tariff bill had been reported favorably upon checked the declining tendency and rallied prices. Advices of good export business, most of which was for the Continent, reported by New York, came in play to strengthen the tone also and all domestic markets advanced stiffly. The closing Liverpool was ⅛d lower and Berlin weak—holiday at Paris and Antwerp—but did not affect this side and the close was firm.

FUTURES—Aug sold at 50½c. Sept opened at 51⅛c, declined to 50⅝c, advanced to 51⅛c, closing at 51⅛c asked. Dec opened a 54⅝c and sold off to 53⅝@⅞c and back to 54⅝c, closing at 54⅝@½c. May sold at 60c and offered on call at 59⅞c.

SPOT GRADES—Lower and most the buying by elevator representatives. No 2 red sold on Call in F and United at 50⅛c, and East side at 50⅝c. No 3 red in F at 48c, and that bid for United, 48¼c for East side. No 4 winter offered in Valley at 46⅛c, bid 46⅛c and 46c bid United. No 2 hard winter 47⅛c bid Unit d.

Sales: No 2 red—2 cars and 25,300 bu in F and 12 cars and 6,200 bu in United at 50⅛c, 6 cars and 900 bu. East side at 50⅝c. No 3 red—3 cars in F at 48c, 2 cars and 166 sks East Side at 48c.

SAMPLES—Received, 20,431 sks, 118 cars local, 11 cars through. At the decline only a few millers in market and they were particular in their selections and not paying any premium over grade prices, save for some No 3 and No 4. As high as 50⅛c paid for choice samples for seed, but 50c about market for No 2.

Corn—The bottom appeared this afternoon to have fallen completely out of the market and every attempt to sell resulted in shoving prices down lower and lower, so scarce were buyers. The weather map showed rains in many localities of the corn belt and the private wires had good rains reported nearly everywhere. This supposed break in the drouth started longs to realizing, and the result was a complete smash, May declining 1⅜c rapidly. Most of the crop advices continued bad, foreign markets were firm, the amount afloat decreased 589,000 bu, and the visible 574,000 bu, but nothing bullish went until wheat rallied. The market turned very strong late and a demand coming in that found little for sale run prices up, so that all the decline was recovered and the close firm. Liverpool reported 2c decline, but this had no effect upon domestic markets, which were again very bullish.

FUTURES—Sept opened at 51c and sold at 50⅝c and offered at 50⅛c, but from this sold up to 51⅜c and later bid up to 53⅛c without a trade. May opened at 49c, declined to 48c and recovered to 49⅛c, which was bid at close.

SPOT GRADES—Lower and not much demand. Buyers and sellers generally far apart and no chance to trade. No 2 was offered in C at 52c, bid 51⅛c for regular, 51⅛c for E side, 51⅜c for F and M. No other grades offered on Call, where 52c bid for No 2 white this side, 50c for No 3 do regular, 49c for No 3 regular, 50c for F and M.

Sales: No 2—1 car in C at 51⅛.

A miller took 1 car choice white E track at 58c.

Oats—The future market was very heavy and declined early in the day, on call Aug having sellers at 29⅛c and Sept offered there at 30⅛c, May having sold earlier at 34c. Afterwards Sept sold at 30⅛c to 30⅛@⅜c and at close 30⅛c bid, and for May 35⅛c bid.

SPOT GRADE—Lower, but in demand at 1⅛c decline. No 2 salable at 29⅛c in D and E side and No 3 at 27⅛c in M, D and E side, 27⅜c regular. Sales: No 2—2 cars E side at 29⅛c. No 3—1 car in M at 27⅛c.

Trk this side—2 No 2 at 30⅛c, 1 do at 30⅛c, 6 do at 31c, 1 fancy at 32c, 1 white at 35c, 2 do at 35⅛c. Sacks in—21 mixed with wheat, 62 low white and 125 mixed at 34c round, 19 white at 36c, 27 heavy do at 39c.

Rye—None offered and 50c bid for No 2 regular.

Hay.

Received 500 tons; shipped 65 tons. Large offerings on the East Side caused buyers to hold off for declines, which were finally conceded to the extent of 50c per ton and this had a quieting effect upon the market this side. Prairie was so scarce that it held firm.

Sales: This side—1 car prairie at $8, 5 do at $8.50, 3 do at $9, 1 car mixed at $9.50, 2 timothy at $10.50, 3 do at $11, 1 at $11.25, 3 at $12, 3 at $12.50, 1 very fancy at $13.50. East track—2 cars timothy at $10, 9 at $11.50, 7 at $12.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 13.—Grains opened weak and lower to-day. Corn was off on account of the breaking of the drought in the corn belt by general rains and the promise of more, the published statement that the damage to that cereal in Kansas and Nebraska had been greatly over-estimated, selling orders by the country and a drop of ½d in Liverpool. Wheat was weak in sympathy with corn on the heavy receipts, the anticipated large increase in the visible supply, the Russian official report that the crop there was turning out to be 50 per cent above an average, on heavy sales for New York accounting, and by country speculators, and a loss of ⅛d in price at Liverpool. Sept wheat opened at 54⅝@⅜c, against 55⅛c as the final figure on Saturday, and sold off to 54⅛@¼. Sept corn started 1c lower at 53c, declined to 52⅛c, advanced to 52¾c, broke to 51⅜c, rallied to 52⅛c, a d eased off slightly. May corn opened at 51@50⅞c, the latter Saturday's closing price, and slumped off to 50⅛c, rallied to 51c, worked off to 50⅛c, and fluctuated between 51c and 50⅛c. Sept oats, which closed at 30⅛c Saturday, opened at 29⅞@30⅛c, touched 29⅜c, but rallied to 31⅛c. Pork was dull but firm, selling at $13.37½, an advance of 2½c for Sept. THE DISPUTED DIAGNOSIS.

WILSON
GORMAN

Both Doctors: "The Post-Mortem Will Show Which One of Us Is Right."

SHE MAY DIE.

Ida Duffy Seriously Ill From Being Kicked and Beaten.

Ida M. Duffy, a mulatto girl, aged 18, will probably die from injuries she received whilst fighting with Lucinda Cuba, colored, at a church party which took place about two weeks ago.

According to the story told to Dr. Heine Marks by Ida M. Duffy, the dispute began about certain aspersions which Ida believed her adversary with the tropical name had cast upon her character. She said, however, that Lucinda Cuba was the aggressor and that she kicked her and beat her before any one could interfere.

It seems that the case was not reported to the police, or if it was, the serious nature of the girl's injuries was not known. A negro doctor was called after Ida had been taken to her home at 218 South Second street. The doctor said that there did not seem to be much the matter with her. Yesterday, however, she became much worse and was sent to the City Hospital. There was no information given, except what the girl could tell, and Dr. Marks finally insisted upon the colored physician being required to tell the name of the disease for which he had been treating her.

The negro doctor said that the girl had been kicked, and that he had treated her for internal injuries resulting from that. The girl was ill with peritonitis, and Dr. Marks said that there might be several causes which would produce that ailment.

After having made an examination, however, he became convinced that if the girl dies her death will result from being kicked and beaten. She is very ill, and it is believed she will not get well. The girl's nervous, apprehensive manner and disjointed statements have left the impression with the hospital physicians that some one was trying to keep secret the manner in which she was injured.

HYDROPHOBIA FEARED.

The wound was neglected, or rather thought to be slight, but yesterday the boy's arm began to swell, and it is feared that rabies will set in. The boy's parents live at 1329 Graham avenue.

POLICE OFFICERS FIGHT.

A Serious Affray Between Patrolmen Dundon, Cole and Quigley.

Officers Tom Quigley, Michael Dundon and Richard Cole of the Central District, at 11 o'clock last night, engaged in a fight at Seventh and Clark avenue, during which Officer Quigley struck Officer Dundon a blow with his fist on the left jaw and was fired upon by Officer Dundan and assaulted by Officer Cole, who used his night club.

Had it not been for the timely arrival of Sergt. Tom Boyd, with a relieving platoon, it is probable that a murder would have been committed and that Officer Quigley would have been the victim. Bad blood has existed between Officers Dundon and Quigley for about two months past, when Quigley was transferred to an adjoining beat with Dundon. It is said the latter has been ridiculing Quigley by remarking that he ought to be back in Ireland eating potatoes. Last night when these two officers and Officers Heath and Cole were standing on the southwest corner of Seventh and Clark avenue, Dundon was talking to a colored woman who mentioned Quigley's name. The latter heard his name and asked what it was about. It is claimed that Dundon began guying him and a general argument ensued, during which angry words were passed. Officer Quigley said he thought Dundon must be an A. P. A. and Dundon got angry. The two men were sitting down and Dundon jumped to his feet in a threatening manner. The next instant, it is said, he brought his night club down on Quigley's head, breaking the latter's helmet. Officer Quigley had no club, but he jumped up and struck Dundon on the jaw. Dundon then drew his revolver and fired a shot at Quigley, while the latter was running his hand back to the billy in his hip-pocket. Officer Cole then raised his club and, it is claimed, struck Quigley on the right wrist. Officer Heath had by this time jumped between the combatants and ended the struggle, while Sergt. Boyd, who was approaching with the night squad, came up and ordered all the officers in the fight to Four Courts. George Smith, a fireman, who had tried to separate the men, was placed under arrest and brought to the Four Courts, but when the story was told at the Four Courts he was released. Smith had only tried to wrest the revolver out of Dundon's hand. At the Four Courts, Dundon, Cole and Quigley related their story and each of them was suspended. Of the trio Officer Quigley alone showed signs of the conflict. His right wrist was badly swollen from Cole's club, and his forehead was cut and his hat broken.

Sergt. Boyd stated that when he got to the scene Officer Dundon still had his revolver out and it required quite an effort to get it away from him. The case will be aired at the next meeting of the Police Board.

He left here five months ago for the Pacific coast, where he became a sailor, and his fate has been an awful one. He was a bright young fellow and closely related to the Gideons of this city, being a nephew of Judge James J. Gideon and a son of Dr. John Gideon of Ozark, a prominent citizen of Christian County. He was well known here and was very popular among his schoolmates. The whalingboat, James Allen, on which young Gideon shipped, left San Francisco April 3 and on May 3 went to pieces on an unknown reef. The awful story of what followed has been fully told in dispatches from San Francisco.

Klosterman six weeks ago was released from the penitentiary, and for the past week he has been in the employ of Mrs. E. M. Hobart of 2644 Washington avenue as houseman. Last Saturday night he left the house and at the same time Mrs. Hobart's $90 watch and chain disappeared. Klosterman was suspected and was arrested by the detectives at 2742 Cass avenue. He denied at first the theft, but afterward admitted the same. The watch and chain were recovered. Klosterman got two years in the penitentiary for a similar trick.

NEGRO LYNCHINGS.

Representative Blair's Scheme for Congressional Investigation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—The steps taken by Representative Blair of New Hampshire to secure congressional investigation through the Commissioner of Labor of the general punishment by lynching of colored men, who are supposed to have outraged women, are stirring up an unexpected degree of interest. Since the resolution was introduced great numbers of communications on the subject have come to Mr. Blair, although but ten days have passed since the matter was made public. Most of the letters are from religious bodies and organizations of colored people. The colored people both North and South seem to be greatly interested in the proposition, and resolutions have come from meetings in New York and New Orleans and many cities between those two. It is not expected that the investigation will be undertaken during this session of Congress, but probably will be begun early next session provided, of course, that the House votes to have it undertaken.

SAID HE ELOPED.

George Walsh Told His Friends He Was Married.

THE LADY WHOSE NAME HE GAVE DENIES IT.

He Said the Marriage Took Place at Clayton Saturday—An Interview With the Alleged Bride at Her Home in Which She Enters an Emphatic Denial—A Surprise Party Spoiled—Mr. Walsh Not to Be Found.

A rather amusing sequel to the recent elopement of James T. Walsh with ex-Gov. Brockmeyer's talented daughter Julia has come to light. Mrs. Walsh was born it appears on Aug. 11, 1875, and Saturday being her 19th birthday it seems that a number of her and her husband's friends arranged to celebrate the anniversary by going from St. Louis to the home of the happy young couple in Edwardsville, Ill., Saturday evening and there tendering them a surprise party. It was arranged, the story goes, that the ladies and gentlemen who were to form the party, that was to surprise the chief clerk of the Niedringhaus brick-works at Glen Carbon, Ill. and his youthful bride were to meet at the home of Mr. Vincent Gallagher, the Democratic Congressional Committeeman from the Twelfth Ward, No. 1452 Monroe street, at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and thence go in a body to take the 4:30 Wabash train for Edwardsville. Mr. Gallagher's house is just adjoining to that of Lieut.-Gov. Brockmeyer and Mr. Gallagher, by the way, is the gentleman who officiated as best man at the wedding of Miss Julia Brockmeyer and Mr. James T. Walsh. The party that was to meet there, it appears, was to include besides Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher, Mr. George Walsh and several others.

WALSH DID NOT APPEAR.

When the appointed hour arrived Mr. George Walsh, it seems, did not put in an appearance and Mr. Gallagher sent word to his friends that the deal was off. About 8 o'clock Saturday night, the story goes, Mr. George Walsh, who is said to be the manager of the St. Louis Sign Co. and who lives with his father at 1120 Jackson place, did come to Mr. Gallagher's home dressed in his best and the lapel of his black coat adorned with a huge boutonniere. He confidentially explained to Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher then, it is said, that the reason he did not keep his engagement for the afternoon was that he had followed his brother's example, eloped and was married at Clayton that afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher were thunderstruck by the news and wanted to know who the fair bride was. He told them, it is said, that she was a very beautiful young lady who officiated as a telegraph operator at a prominent hotel. After that, it seems, the report quickly spread about the neighborhood that George Walsh had eloped, and the rumor finally reaching the POST-DISPATCH a reporter was assigned to investigrte the rumored romance.

AT THE HOTEL.

A call at the hotel Saturday night revealed the fact that George Walsh had really been seen there during the afternoon in conversation with the fair wire tapper, and as the reporter learned that Mr. Walsh had been seen escorting the young lady to a car he supposed he had accompanied her home and explained matters to the old folks, and accordingly made a trip to her residence in South St. Louis. It was nearly midnight when he arrived there, and the family canine evinced a determination to chew him up when he rapped for admission. The young lady's parents were awakened by the rapping, however, and her father emerged and listened attentively while the newspaper man explained the object of his nocturnal visit. When he heard it he laughed heartily and called his daughter. She threw open the shutters of a side window and the reporter climbed a garden settee just beneath it and asked the white robed seraphic looking creature whose presence was disclosed, if she really had gone to Clayton yesterday afternoon and married Mr. Walsh.

THE YOUNG LADY'S DENIAL.

She seemed highly amused, but she answered sweetly: "Why, my gracious, no! Who in the world could ever have originated such a story as that? Why, dear me, they'll guy me awfully at the hotel about this. Why, gracious, no, I didn't go to Clayton yesterday afternoon to get a license. I was at work all afternoon and had no time to lay off. Yes, I know Mr. Walsh. He was down here to see me Sunday evening and Wednesday evening too, and he was up at the hotel this afternoon, but the idea of us going to Clayton! Why that's so strange! Couldn't we get married here in St. Louis if we wanted to get married? Why, I don't believe George knows the way to Clayton. I'm sure I don't. But it's so awfully funny that any one should tell the POST-DISPATCH such a thing about me," and as she concluded she laughed a merry, silvery laugh that seemed to indicate that the novelty of the situation highly amused her. Her mother, who stood in the window with her arm lovingly around her fair-haired daughter's neck, also smiled, and her gray-bearded father, who had come out into the yard, also seemed to find great merriment in the unexpected development. He laughed heartily about the matter, said it was a good joke, but joined his wife and daughter in assuring their visitor most positively that their daughter had not eloped with Mr. Walsh.

MR. WALSH NOT IN.

A call was made Saturday night at the residence of Mr. James Walsh, No. 1120 Jackson place, but every effort to gain admission to the house proved unavailing. Repeated ringing of the bell and frequent rattling of the door and knob failed to arouse any signs of life in the tightly shut up residence.

Yesterday the story of Mr. Walsh's reported elopement seemed to spread all over St. Michael's parish in North St. Louis and Mr. Walsh's friends hunted for him to guy him about it in a friendly way, but he could not be found. He didn't come home Saturday night or last night either. Nor had he been to his office at 205 South Broadway this morning when a reporter called there to get his version of the affair. His father was seen, but said he did not know where George was, that he had seen him down town yesterday and thought it possible he might be in Edwardsville. Mr. Walsh, Sr., said he did not know whether his son had eloped. "I've heard of stranger things than that though," said he; "he's old enough to elope if he wants, and maybe he did, like his brother."

Mr. Gallagher, when seen this morning, was much averse to discussing the case. He reluctantly admitted, however, that the story that George Walsh told him he eloped Sunday was correct.

The young lady was at her post of duty again this morning. She seemed very sorry that she should acquire any notoriety over the affair, as the elopement story was utterly without foundation. She was also very indignant that any one should tell such a story about her, but said she was certain that George never said any such a thing.

While Mr. Walsh's story to his friends may be true, it is evident that he has not given the right young lady's name, and he alone can now clear the mystery.

SAYS IT WAS A JOKE.

Later in the day the following note was received from Mr. Walsh:

Regarding the rumor of my elopement Saturday, I wish to inform you that I have been made the victim of a joker. I have discovered the source from whence it came and wish the matter dropped at once. Am sorry I did not meet you on your rounds and have the affair hushed ere this.

GEORGE F. WALSH.
